Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory.....

...of Hallahan in the Pages of

Silver Sands

This book attempts to portray in picture and in writing the story of one school year. We shall show here the sources of our pride—the splendid curriculum, the widely varied extra-curricular activities, and behind these the people and spirit that have helped to make Hallahan glorious. Glory is usually of a transitory nature but the glory of Hallahan is a permanent thing. We are proud of our school and our lips are fervent in her praise. Our enthusiasm may be traced to deeply rooted tradition, invincible school spirit, and actual achievement at work and play. For more than three decades this tradition has flourished and grown stronger.

Mine Eyes Have Seen the Gl of Hallahan

Hallahan has the unique distinction of being the first high school founded for the Catholic girls of Philadelphia and its vicinity. Established upon the fundamental conviction that all learning should begin and end with God, the Catholic Girls' High School was opened in 1912. The late Most Reverend Phillip R. McDevitt, Bishop of Harrisburg, became its first principal and drew up the rules and regulations. The name of John W. Hallahan was prefixed in 1925 in memory of the brother of Mrs. Mary E. H. McMichan, the benefactress of the school. Hallahan continues to measure up to its original high standards and worthy aims.

Our Diocesan Administrators Who Lead Gloriously

RT. REV. MONSIGNOR JOHN J. BONNER, D.D.
Diocesan Superintendent of Schools

The Right Reverend Monsignor John J. Bonner. D. D.. Superintendent of Schools of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, has been a popular figure at Hallahan since 1926, from which time he has been a most zealous and far-sighted director of Catholic elementary and secondary education.

With Monsignor and Colonel Bill, diocesan students discuss the advantages of participation in the Catholic High School Hour.

Assistant Supt. of Schools

REVEREND EDWARD M. REILLY, J. C. D.
Assistant Supt. of Schools

Here Monsignor Bonner is seen entering Convention Hall with the Most Reverend Hugh L. Lamb, D. D., V. G., at the combined graduation of the Diocesan Catholic Girls' High Schools. In the foreground is Very Reverend Philip J. Furlong, the speaker at the commencement exercises.

Under the excellent guidance of Monsignor Bonner, Hallahan has added another glorious year to its book of memories. Through his wise and enthusiastic leadership, he has enabled us to adapt ourselves to the stirring days of war. A man of inspiring character and undaunted courage, he has proved himself through the years a capable leader at all times. Under his inspiration and supervision, the Catholic schools of Philadelphia have taken a leading place among the schools of the country. In his arduous labors for Catholic education in the archdiocese, Monsignor Bonner is ably assisted by the associate superintendents, the Reverend Edward M. Reilly, J.C.D., and the Reverend Joseph A. Gorham, S.T.L. They also are familiar and well known figures in our diocesan high schools. Monsignor Bonner and his loyal assistants are behind much of the glory that is Hallahan. We are mindful of their planning and hard work in our behalf and we appreciate their interest in us and in our future.

They Guide

The first Catholic school to combine the skill of five different religious communities for its teaching staff, Hallahan owes much of its glory to the meritorious work of its unique faculty. The school itself grew out of the four separate high school centers. Hence at its establishment the new high school was staffed by representatives of those religious communities found in these original centers. In Hallahan today, there are five religious communities, the Sisters of St. Francis, Third Order, Sisters of the Holy Child Jesus, Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, Sisters of St. Joseph, and Sisters of Mercy. The members of these orders are fine specialists in their fields. The Sisters of St. Francis instruct the students in science, chemistry, physics, bookkeeping, stenography, and typing. The Sisters of the Holy Child Jesus are instructors of French and Spanish. History, mathematics, art, and home economics are the fields of learning in the

All the Sisters of the faculty are instructors in Religion. In the various courses offered by the school, the students of Hallahan meet patient guides directing them and helping them with any difficulties that they might meet. Not only are the students fortunate to have such expert guidance in study, but also to have in the person of counselors, faculty assistance for individual problems pertaining to curriculum and activities. The faculty of this girls' high school is one of the most outstanding of its kind. No small part of the success of the Hallahan students and graduates is due to their devoted teachers.

Mine Eyes Have Seen th

Glory of Our Curriculum

Much of Hallahan's glory is due to a curriculum that is varied and broad. The students who complete their high school education in the inspirational Catholic atmosphere that pervades the institution, will leave here efficient in their respective courses. At a time when capable, well-trained girls are needed in every field, they will make the world a much better place if they put into practice the Catholic principles that they have learned in this great Catholic high school.

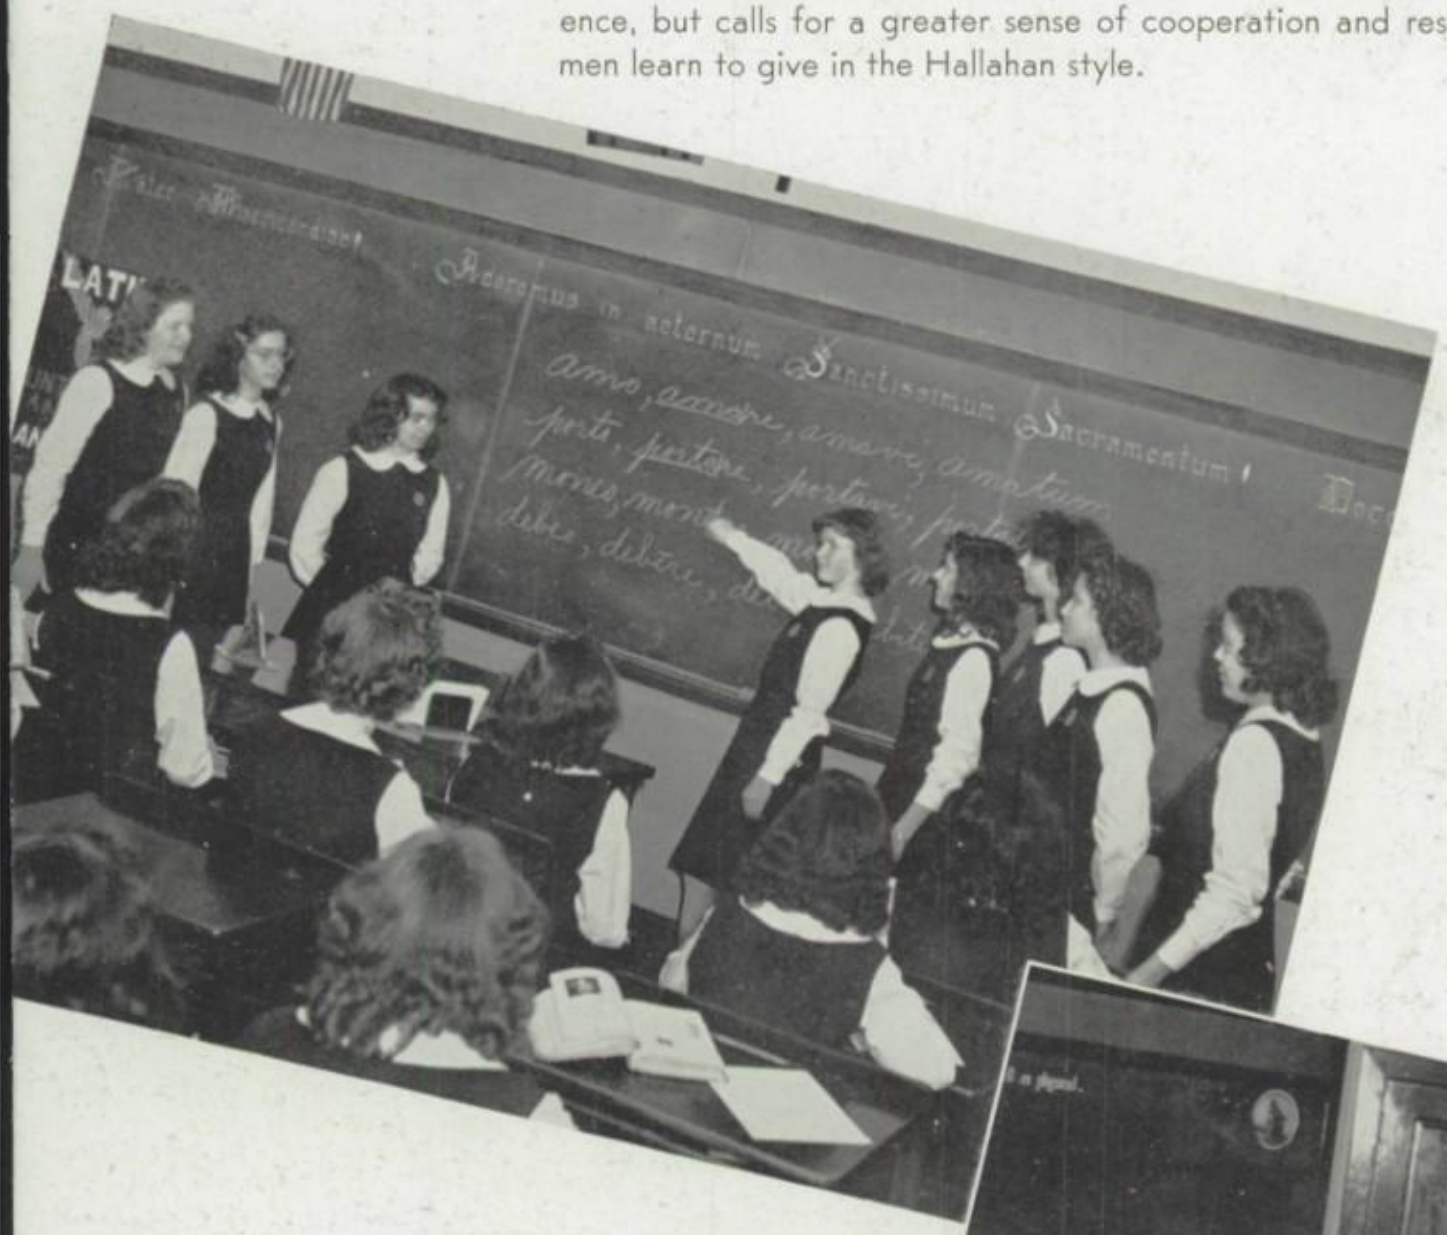
Hallahan Freshmen are Students . . .

Starry eyed and eager to be part of a great school, freshmen clutch their rosters. With art, algebra I, English I, world history, physical education, and Religion I as required subjects, and French I, Latin I, or Spanish I, offered for the first time to freshmen, as elective subjects and an introduction to language, our little sisters are presented with quite a challenge. For the first time, too, these students meet several teachers in the course of a day. In the beginning, the following of a roster often leads to amusing situations, but the determined freshmen soon conquer and their accomplishments add to the prestige of their new Alma Mater The curriculum offers new and wider experience, but calls for a greater sense of cooperation and responsibility which the freshmen learn to give in the Hallahan style.



In the first year the basic rules of the Latin language are studied by the freshmen. Note, Ethel Crowly shows the present stem of Latin verbs to a few of her classmates. Among those are Margaret Radvanky, Rita Reina, and Jean Skowronski.

St. Peters Annex

Every Latin student knows the struggle it is to master Latin cases. Here Joan Gordon tries to explain to her fellow Latin aspirants the "whip" of a Latin sentence. Latin cases in diagram form suggest "Vidi, Vici."

Since its establishment in 1936, St. Peter's has been part of the accomplishment that is Hallahan. In former years one of the four annexes of this school, St. Peter's is now the only remaining Hallahan annex. Every year hundreds of freshmen receive their introduction to the Hallahan world and spirit at the annex. Though at one time sophomores were part of its enrollment, today it includes a vital, eager 505 wearers of the green and white emblem. The loyal support and unwavering generosity with which our annex sisters rally behind all Hallahan enterprise are facts unanimously known and appreciated. It is as result of such loyalty and enthusiasm that this school boasts of the freshmen Hallahanites of our annex.

Madame Sarlo is surrounded by a group of animated onlookers as she explains some recent war pictures. French students appreciate tales of the famous Parisian buildings.

Lorraine Warner very capably takes over the History class as she tells why the Industrial Revolution began in England. Mary Walsh assists her as she points out localities.

An event that does much to boost school spirit at the annex is the Annual Poster Contest. Above Gloria Kisless calls Regina Leitmeyer's attention to the merits of her snowman.

Below: Dorothy Gentner, Regina Coonan and Mary Fiari command an attentive audience as they reveal their dramatic ability in a one-act sketch in the English class.

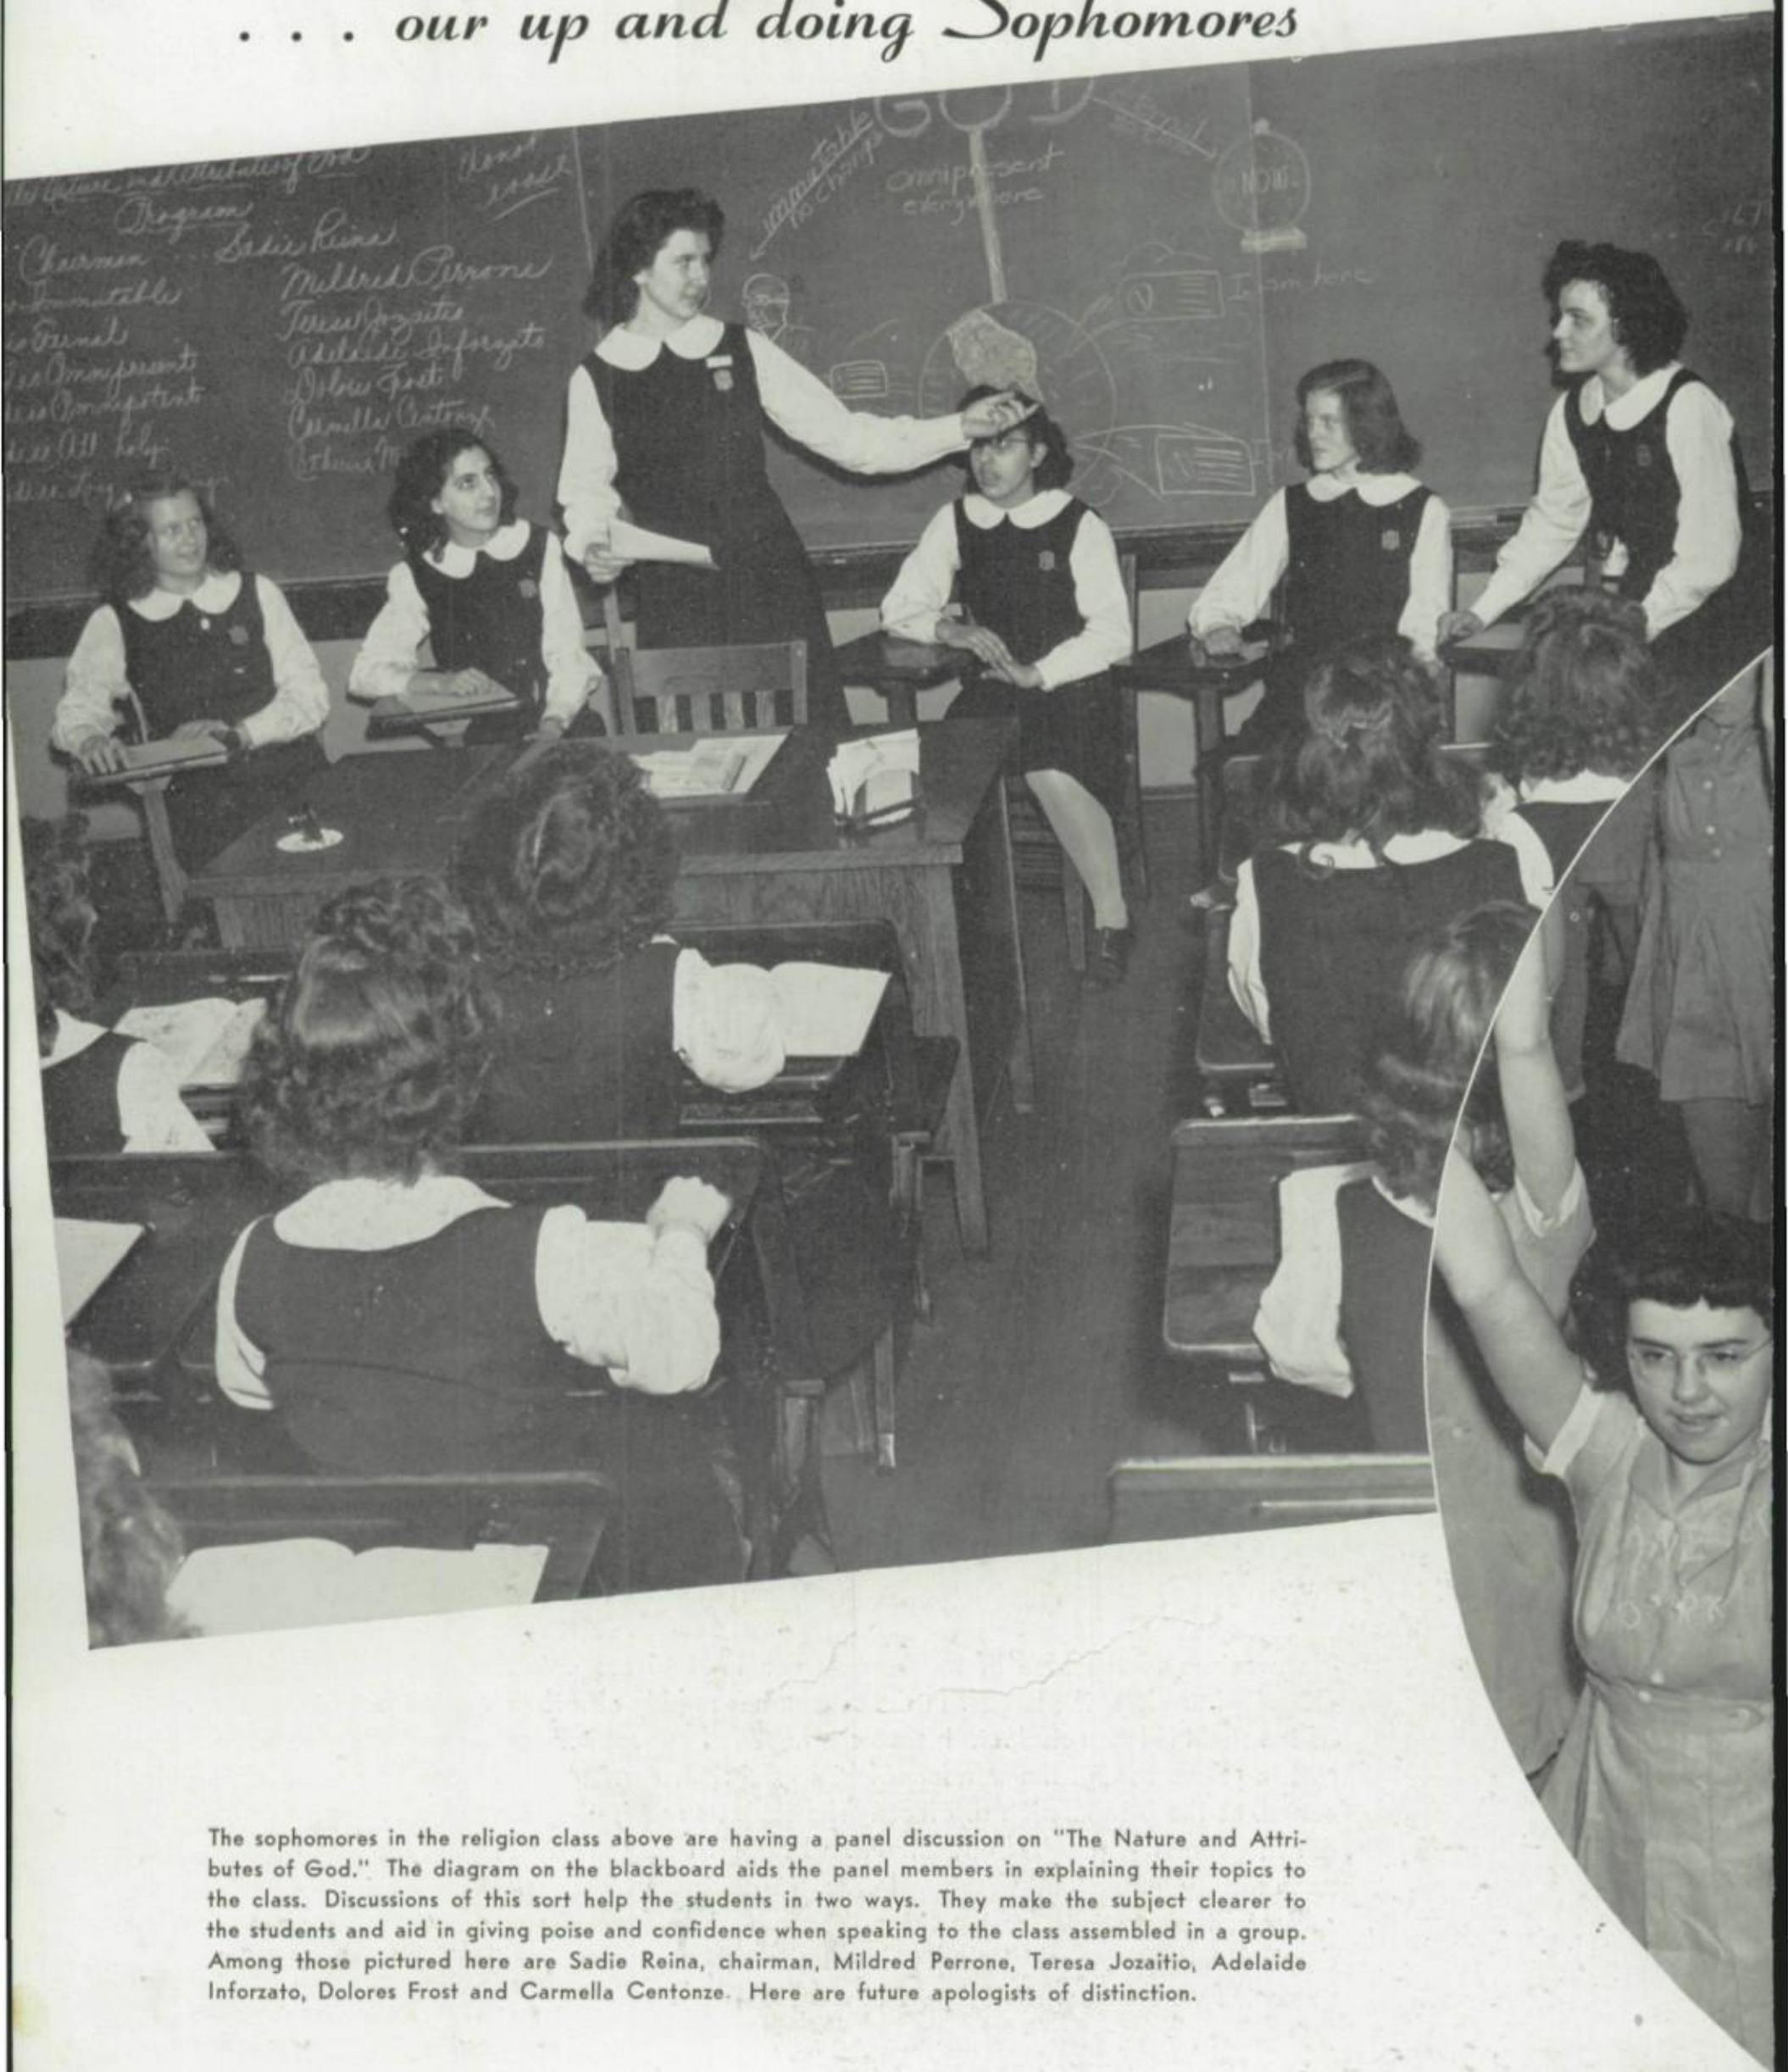
Quality in Quantity Fits Well

The sophomores in the art class pictured below are busy making color wheels, using water paints. This picture was taken in room thirty-three, a room well known to the artists here at Hallahan. Among the sophomores in this picture are Rita Renzi, Frances Devlin, Alice McDonald, and Alfreda Pivirotto. This subject is offered to students of every year.

Biology is one of the subjects offered to our sophomores. Here a group of students wander down one of the many magical lanes of new knowledge via the microscope. Joyce Kramer, Dolores Tate, and Dolores Bruno stand in the rear of the room.

The wearers of the blue of the school year 1944-45 are veterans now at following rosters. This class, the largest in the school, has readily absorbed the earnest attitude of the real Hallahan student. Hence the heads of our sophomores are filled with geometric problems and the wonders of biology. Their curriculum includes new subjects, as well as the continuation of others. The subjects required of them are biology, English II, geometry, physical education, and Religion II. Latin or French, modern European history, music, and vocational art are sophomore electives. With their choice of subjects, their pattern for the future begins to take form. They complete their academic foundation on which they will base the subjects, either academic or commercial, which they are hoping to follow in their other school years.

. . . our up and doing Sophomores



The sophomores in the religion class above are having a panel discussion on "The Nature and Attributes of God." The diagram on the blackboard aids the panel members in explaining their topics to the class. Discussions of this sort help the students in two ways. They make the subject clearer to the students and aid in giving poise and confidence when speaking to the class assembled in a group. Among those pictured here are Sadie Reina, chairman, Mildred Perrone, Teresa Jozaitio, Adelaide Inforzato, Dolores Frost and Carmella Centonze. Here are future apologists of distinction.

the largest class at Hallahan

In the sophomore year, students are introduced to modern European history. The three students pictured here are explaining a phase of the subject to their classmates by use of diagrams drawn on the board. They are deeply interested: Anne Hampson, Catherine MacAdams, and Mary Jaskowski.

Gym is one of the subjects required of students of every year. The sophomores above are executing one of the various exercises taught in the classes. They are devised to help build muscles and to promote physical fitness. To the right are Frances Devlin, Joan Watson, Rita Renzi, and Marie Porecca—athletes all.

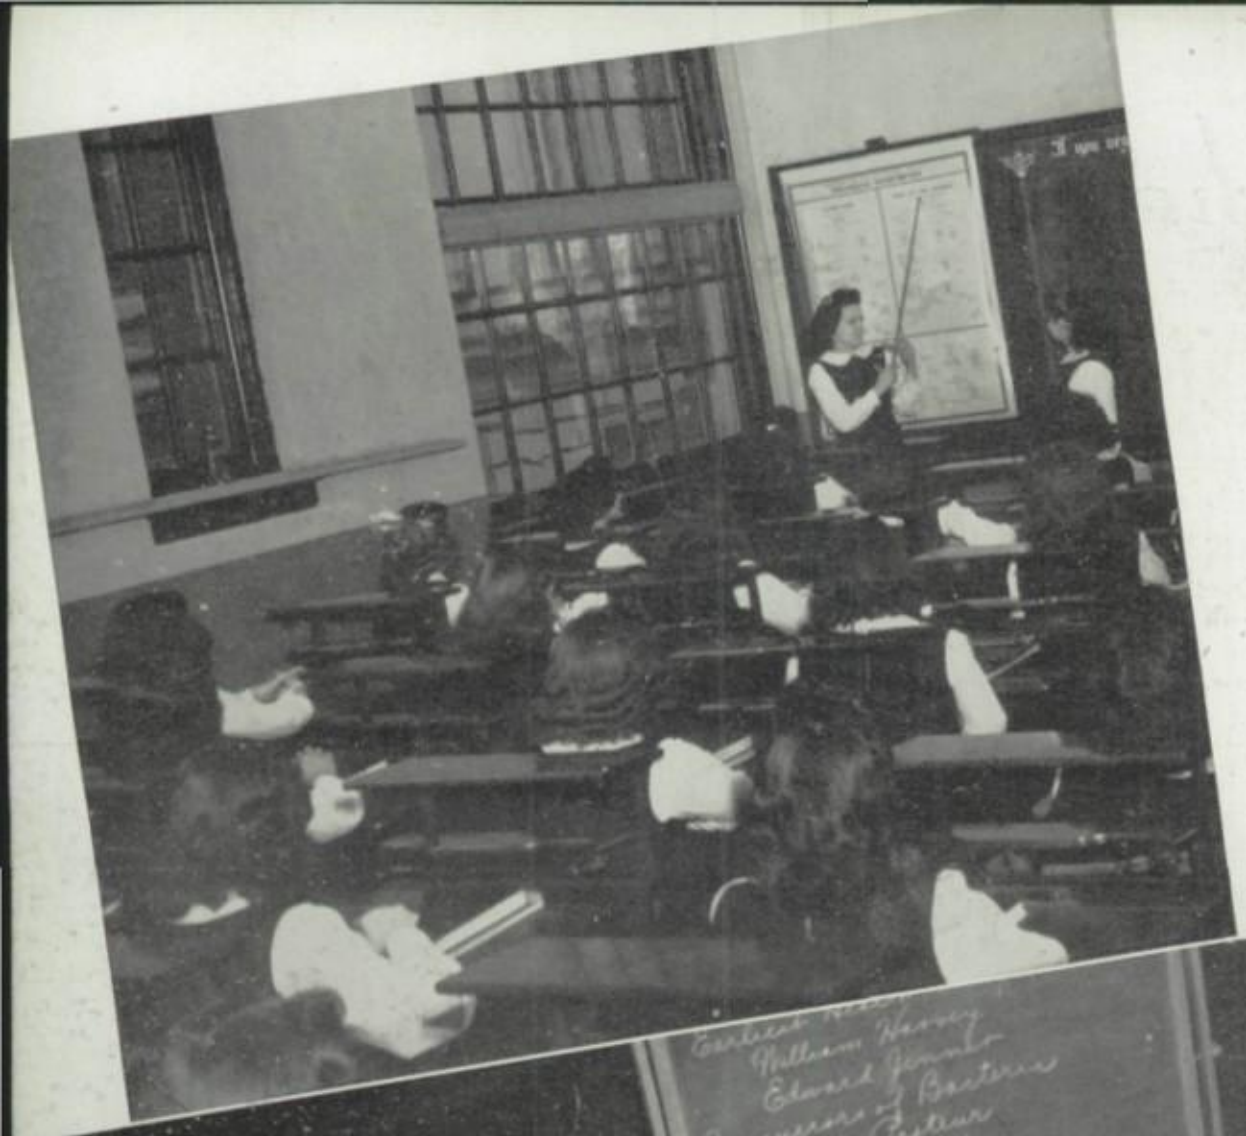
It is in this year that former sophomores may take specialized courses; a junior choosing to train for the business world may select typing, stenography, or bookkeeping. To the student who wishes to secure a better understanding of the home, a course in homemaking, including a study of foods and clothing, is offered. The junior who intends to go to a higher institution of learning usually perseveres in the study of at least one language—Latin, French, or Spanish; she also elects a science—physics or chemistry, and perhaps mathematics—advanced algebra. In addition, Miss Hallahan Junior may continue to develop her artistic talent by electing vocational art or music. All juniors take Religion, English, and American history, the thrilling saga of our country. Students interested in journalism may elect newswriting.

Ghosts of ancient Rome are resurrected in Hallahan by third year Latin students. Marie O'Hara, sitting, portrays Catiline. Mildred Shiavo, center, is Cicero. Other "Senators" are Geraldine Donhauser, Loretta Lavery, Dorothea Dodds and Mary Mannion. Poor Catiline!

Juniors learn music appreciation. Marion Donovan, on the left, is about to play a record on the victrola, while Mary Long holds the sheet music corresponding to the record. Yes, these students know good music.



In junior bookkeeping class Margaret Shannon outlines principles of profit and loss on a chart showing a balance sheet.

Sister Rose, O.S.F., is conducting this class of juniors in a Hygiene lesson on the discoveries of importance in medicine.

Anxiously awaiting the outcome of the case these juniors listen attentively as Joan Mathers pleads for Cassius as portrayed by Marian McDevitt. Margaret Galvin is a very able opponent. Dolores Walsh is the judge of this important case.

In history class, Marie Brogan outlines territory discussed. Patricia Sweeney and Gladys Young have added information.

Spanish students, Marion Cromwell, Jane McClosky, Marie Fitzpatrick, and Mary McKeown are diligently reading Spanish paper "El Eco." Also seen are Grace Orlando, Alice Lyman. Note Spanish flag over the bulletin board.

Seniors near their chosen goal . . .

Miss Hallahan Senior continues in the course she chose in third year. If commercial, she elects stenography II and typing II. To students who have outstanding record in their first year of business subjects, the stenographic-secretarial course affords the opportunity of taking in two periods, stenography, typing, and secretarial studies, which would otherwise be given in three periods. Time thus left to such students may be given to an academic subject. Academic students usually elect physics or chemistry and mathematics-trigonometry and solid geometry, each given in one semester. Latin, French, and Spanish are popular with students of both courses, as are vocational art and music. The national problems course gives a working knowledge of economics and of social problems.

World War II Spotlights Subjects

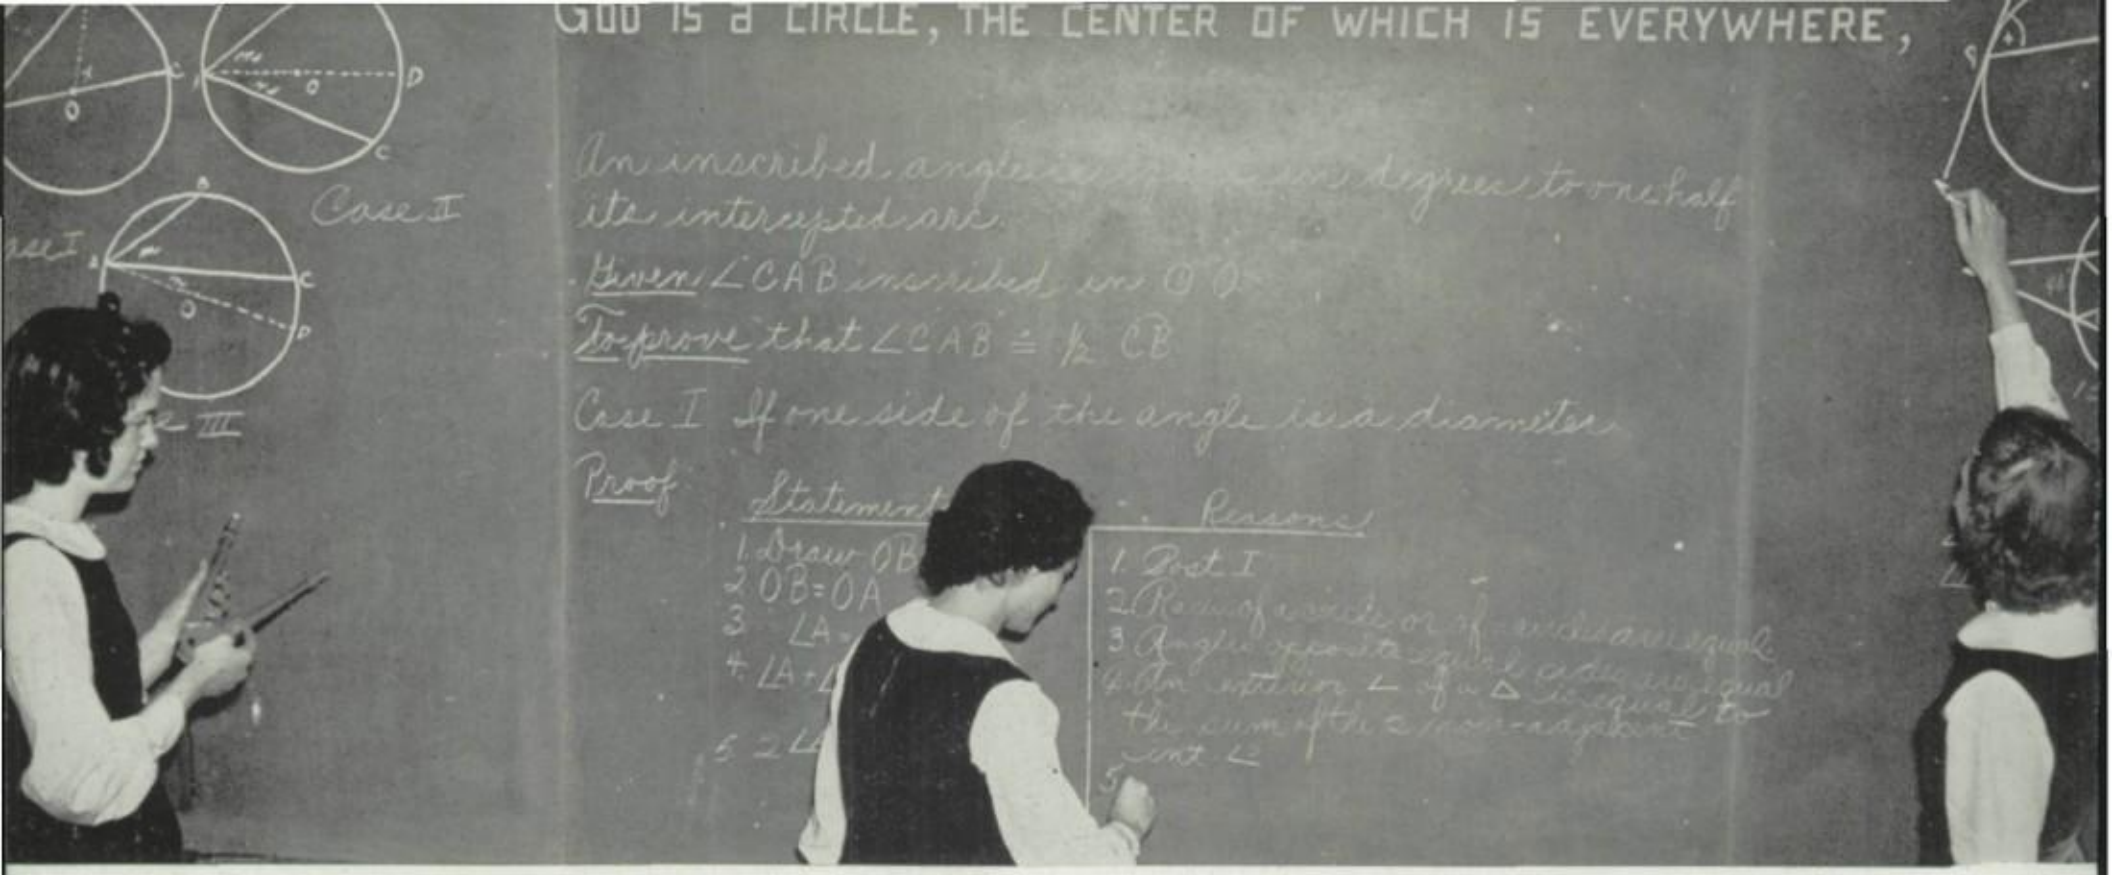
In Hallahan, as elsewhere, we find that the war has turned the spot-light on mathematics, science and the commercial subjects. The growing interest in these special fields is due to the ever-increasing necessity, under the present conditions, for students trained in these subjects. Hallahan has met the urgent needs of wartime, by providing such courses for interested students. The war has returned physics to the curriculum after an absence of almost ten years. The study of chemistry is now open to juniors of good scholastic standing, while mechanical drawing and the subject of health move to the fore.

Shown here conducting an experiment in their physics class are: in the foreground, Mildred Shiavo, a junior, and in the background, seniors, Mabel Hoffman, Helen Endres, Jane Mates, and Barbara Ann Duffy. The students are intent upon noticing and recording the results of air pressure. Physics is one of the subjects to which the war has brought a renewed interest. It will keep its place in the post war world.

That Assume Added Importance

The status of communication in the world of business stresses the importance of the telephone. Here we see Miss Jane Gorman, a former graduate, as she demonstrates the use of the switchboard to: Dolores Neary, Marie Lerario, Rita Salzano, Emma Jane Sellers, Elizabeth Danz.

The girls pictured here are conducting an experiment in the chemistry laboratory. The interested chemists are Clarina Georger, Josephine Dunphy and Mary Smith, seniors. The topic of the experiment undertaken so efficiently is the various methods of purifying water.



Sophomore Mary Meehan illustrates this plane geometry theorem as Dorothy Halner is demonstrating the method of writing out a formal proof.

Operating the addressograph are Elizabeth Schaebler, Anna Tomeo and Frances Dupon. The use of this machine, which facilitates speed in addressing envelopes, is one of several devices taught in transcription class.

On their way to class, transcription students transcribe notes that are to be typed. Find Frances Matonis, Mildred Cromwell, Anne Ranger, Teresa Duffy, and Clare Burkhardt.

Easily identified among the girls at the blackboard is Margaret Flynn. They are students of plane geometry, a second year subject.

These students of the mechanical drawing class are seen measuring the final outlines of a blueprint. Helen Mason hands the compasses to Carmella Caspanello who is adding the last line. Marie Maurizi, an interested on-looker, offers her advice and Frances Matonis checks the measurement on a slide rule.

Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory

f Our School Spirit

In our eyes has been reflected the glory of the Hallahan Spirit. It glows when the time for giving arrives—the giving of prayers and money for charitable purposes. It shines when our sport teams enter competition and three thousand Hallahanites back them with a spirit that is part of our tradition. Hallahan spirit is, nevertheless, more than winning or reaching after attainment; it is an attitude of mind, an unwillingness to yield till the very best of which we are capable has been achieved.

The Student Council is one of the most important factors in the government of Hallahan. This body, composed of councelors elected by the students and approved by the faculty has existed and flourished for nineteen years. The organization offers an opportunity for students to exhibit initiative and leadership. It acts as an interpreter of regulations to the students. Moreover, it symbolizes the students' active participation in school government. The Student Council has added to Hallahan's glory.

Senior Representatives of 1945

The home room representative is another vital part of Student Government. Through this body of officers, freshmen as well as the upper classes may be represented. It is their duty to assist the student councilors in the execution of their duties and to represent their section in all school activities.

Executives of A. A.

The Athletic Association of Hallahan has done much to advance the fame of our Alma Mater throughout the sports world. It offers the student an opportunity to build her body as well as to improve her mind. An A.A. member enjoys such advantages as hockey and basketball. The A.A., rating 100% support, is one of the most popular of Hallahan's opportunities.

"Sand Script" is welcomed monthly by eager students who search the news, features, pictures, and their favorite column, "Sandy", for information about the activities and achievements of their friends. It tells the story of the little world of Hallahan where three thousand girls live an active school life. It reports activity at school as well as all extra-curricular engagements, leaving no source of news unexplored. All departments are represented: Religion, the sciences, the four languages, mathematics, art, and history. The home economics' fashion predictions are popular with the charm conscious. Catholic literature reviews offer suggestions of entertaining reading. Here enthusiastic readers find the answers to their queries of who won the coveted place on the varsity and what the next red letter date will be on the school calendar. Proudly it has upheld the high standards of its predecessors of over ten years.

All work and no play is not always the case, as demonstrated by newswriters, Elizabeth Norkis and Agnes McGuinn, as they discover a source of merriment, sharing it with Catherine Donnelly, Alice Capozzi, Angela De Marco, and Mildred Schiavo.

Immaculata O'Donnell looks on interestedly and offers suggestions to Lillian Gonzales and Anna Lamina, members of the Art Department, as they diligently sketch cartoons, which are important to newspaper makeup.

What Gold in Silver Sands!

Versatile Marie Mullen, capable editor of "Silver Sands", is shown advising Frances Ferris in one of the many detailed problems involved in the preparation of a publication.

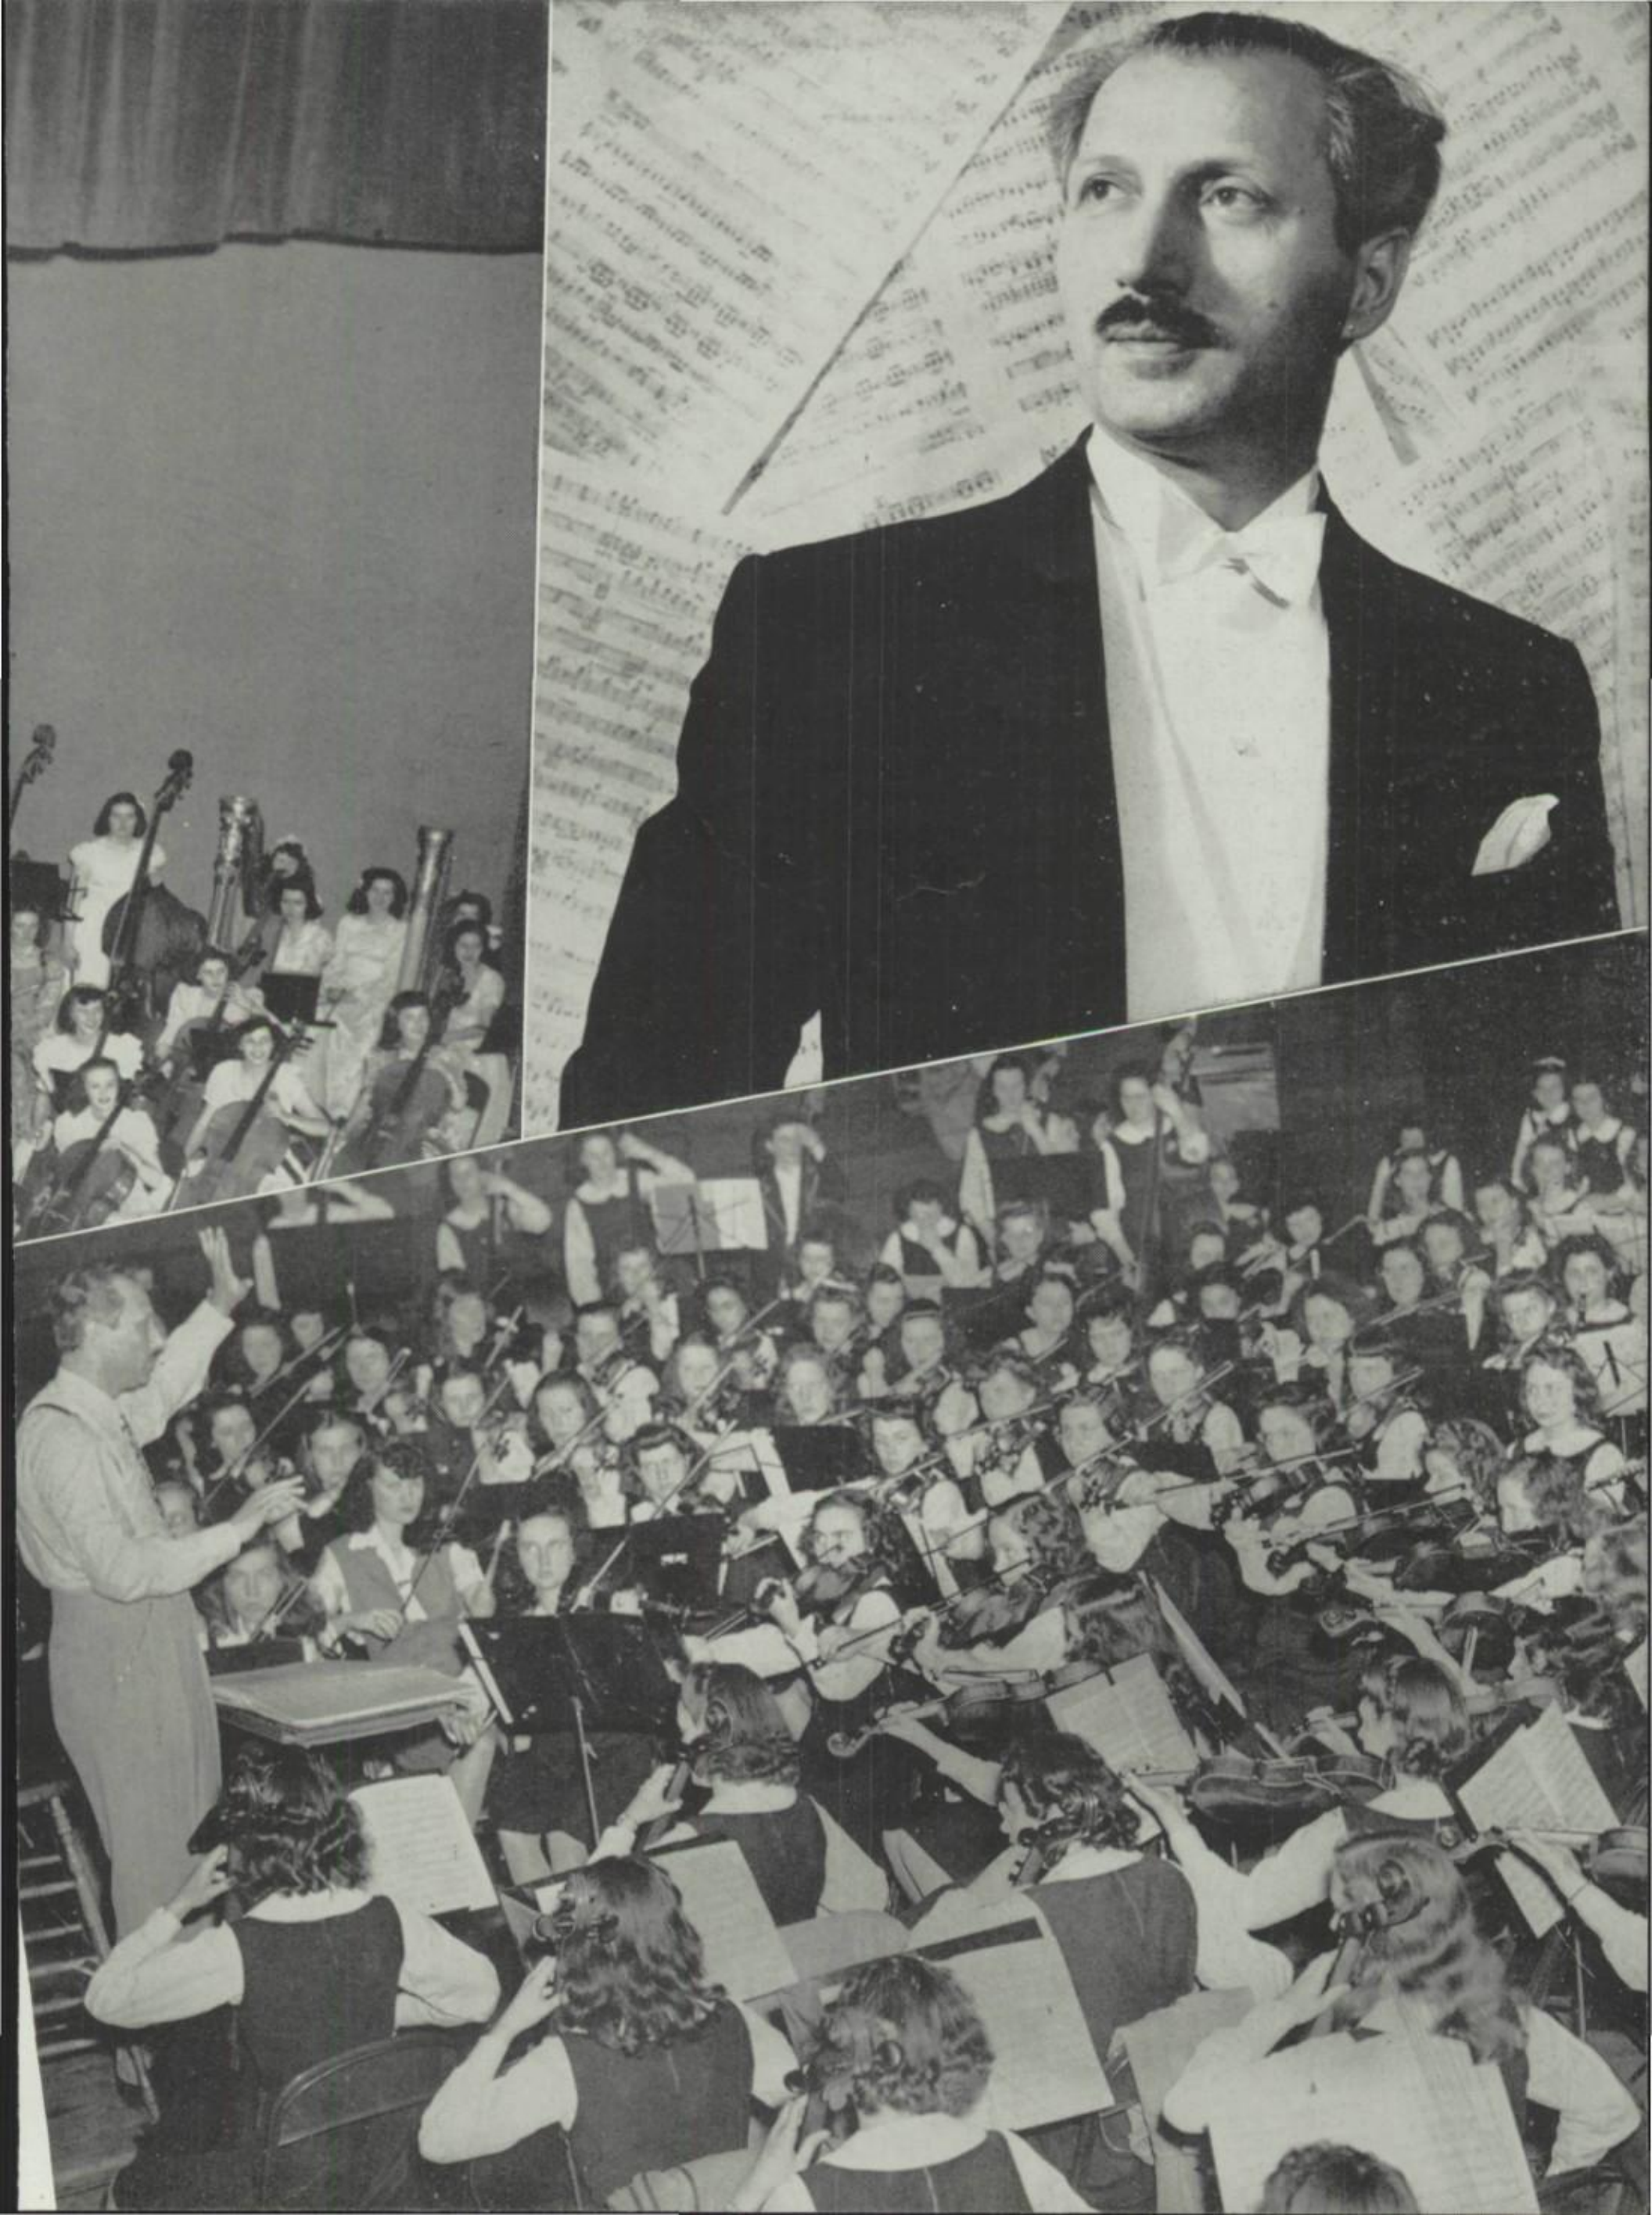
"Silver Sands", the official literary organ of the school, is a bi-annual publication comprised of a literary magazine and a yearbook of pictorial records. In 1917 "Silver Sands" was first published under the title of "Annual". The publication became bi-annual in 1931 with a literary magazine published at mid-year and a recordbook in late spring. The literary edition is open to all the students throughout the school for contribution. This book becomes an incentive to those who have the desire to create since it provides a medium for students who possess the ability to express their original ideas or sentiments in features, short stories, poems or essays. The recordbook recalls the many happy hours spent in school by capturing mainly through pictures all those memories of a four year high school course which the student would cherish as an intimate part of her school life. This edition is prepared by the graduating class only.

The girls pictured below are busily engaged in typing material to be sent to press. This is a profitable experience and an important step in the publication of a magazine. Efficient aides to budding journalists, they enjoy the assignments.

Our Orchestra

A truly great school merits a truly great orchestra. The John W. Hallahan Orchestra, established in 1928, boasts a membership of one hundred twenty-five girls. Both in school and through public appearances, it has won wide acclaim. Annually, this group performs in our own school musicale, and, together with the other diocesan high schools, contributes to the beauty of the Combined Spring Music Festival. This organization is under the direction of Jeno Donath, well known composer and director.



Featured in Annual Musical

The Glee Club, ably conducted by Reverend John A. Murray, left insert, brought to us at this year's Hallahan Musical the beautiful strains of "Romany Life" and "Song a la Czardas" from "The Fortune Teller", "The Lord's Prayer", and "American Glory". Rita Mickey and Rita Cianciarulo, central inserts, accompanied them. Miss Margaret Mary Kearney, right insert, directed the Verse Speaking Choir in their rendition of the lovely words of "Old Nuns", "Foreboding", a tone poem, "Heaven", and the humorous poem, "The Usual Way". Rita Cianciarulo and Ruth Wingel were at the piano. Representatives of both these organizations took part in the combined diocesan music festival given this spring at the Academy of Music.

Follow the Band

A highlight of our annual school musical was the Concert Band which provided a delightful treat for both the eyes and ears. The eighty-five girls who comprised this year's band were attired in becoming gowns of rainbow hues and, as always, their music was beyond compare. Both the Concert Band and our famous Marching Band are organizations of which Hallahan can proudly boast.

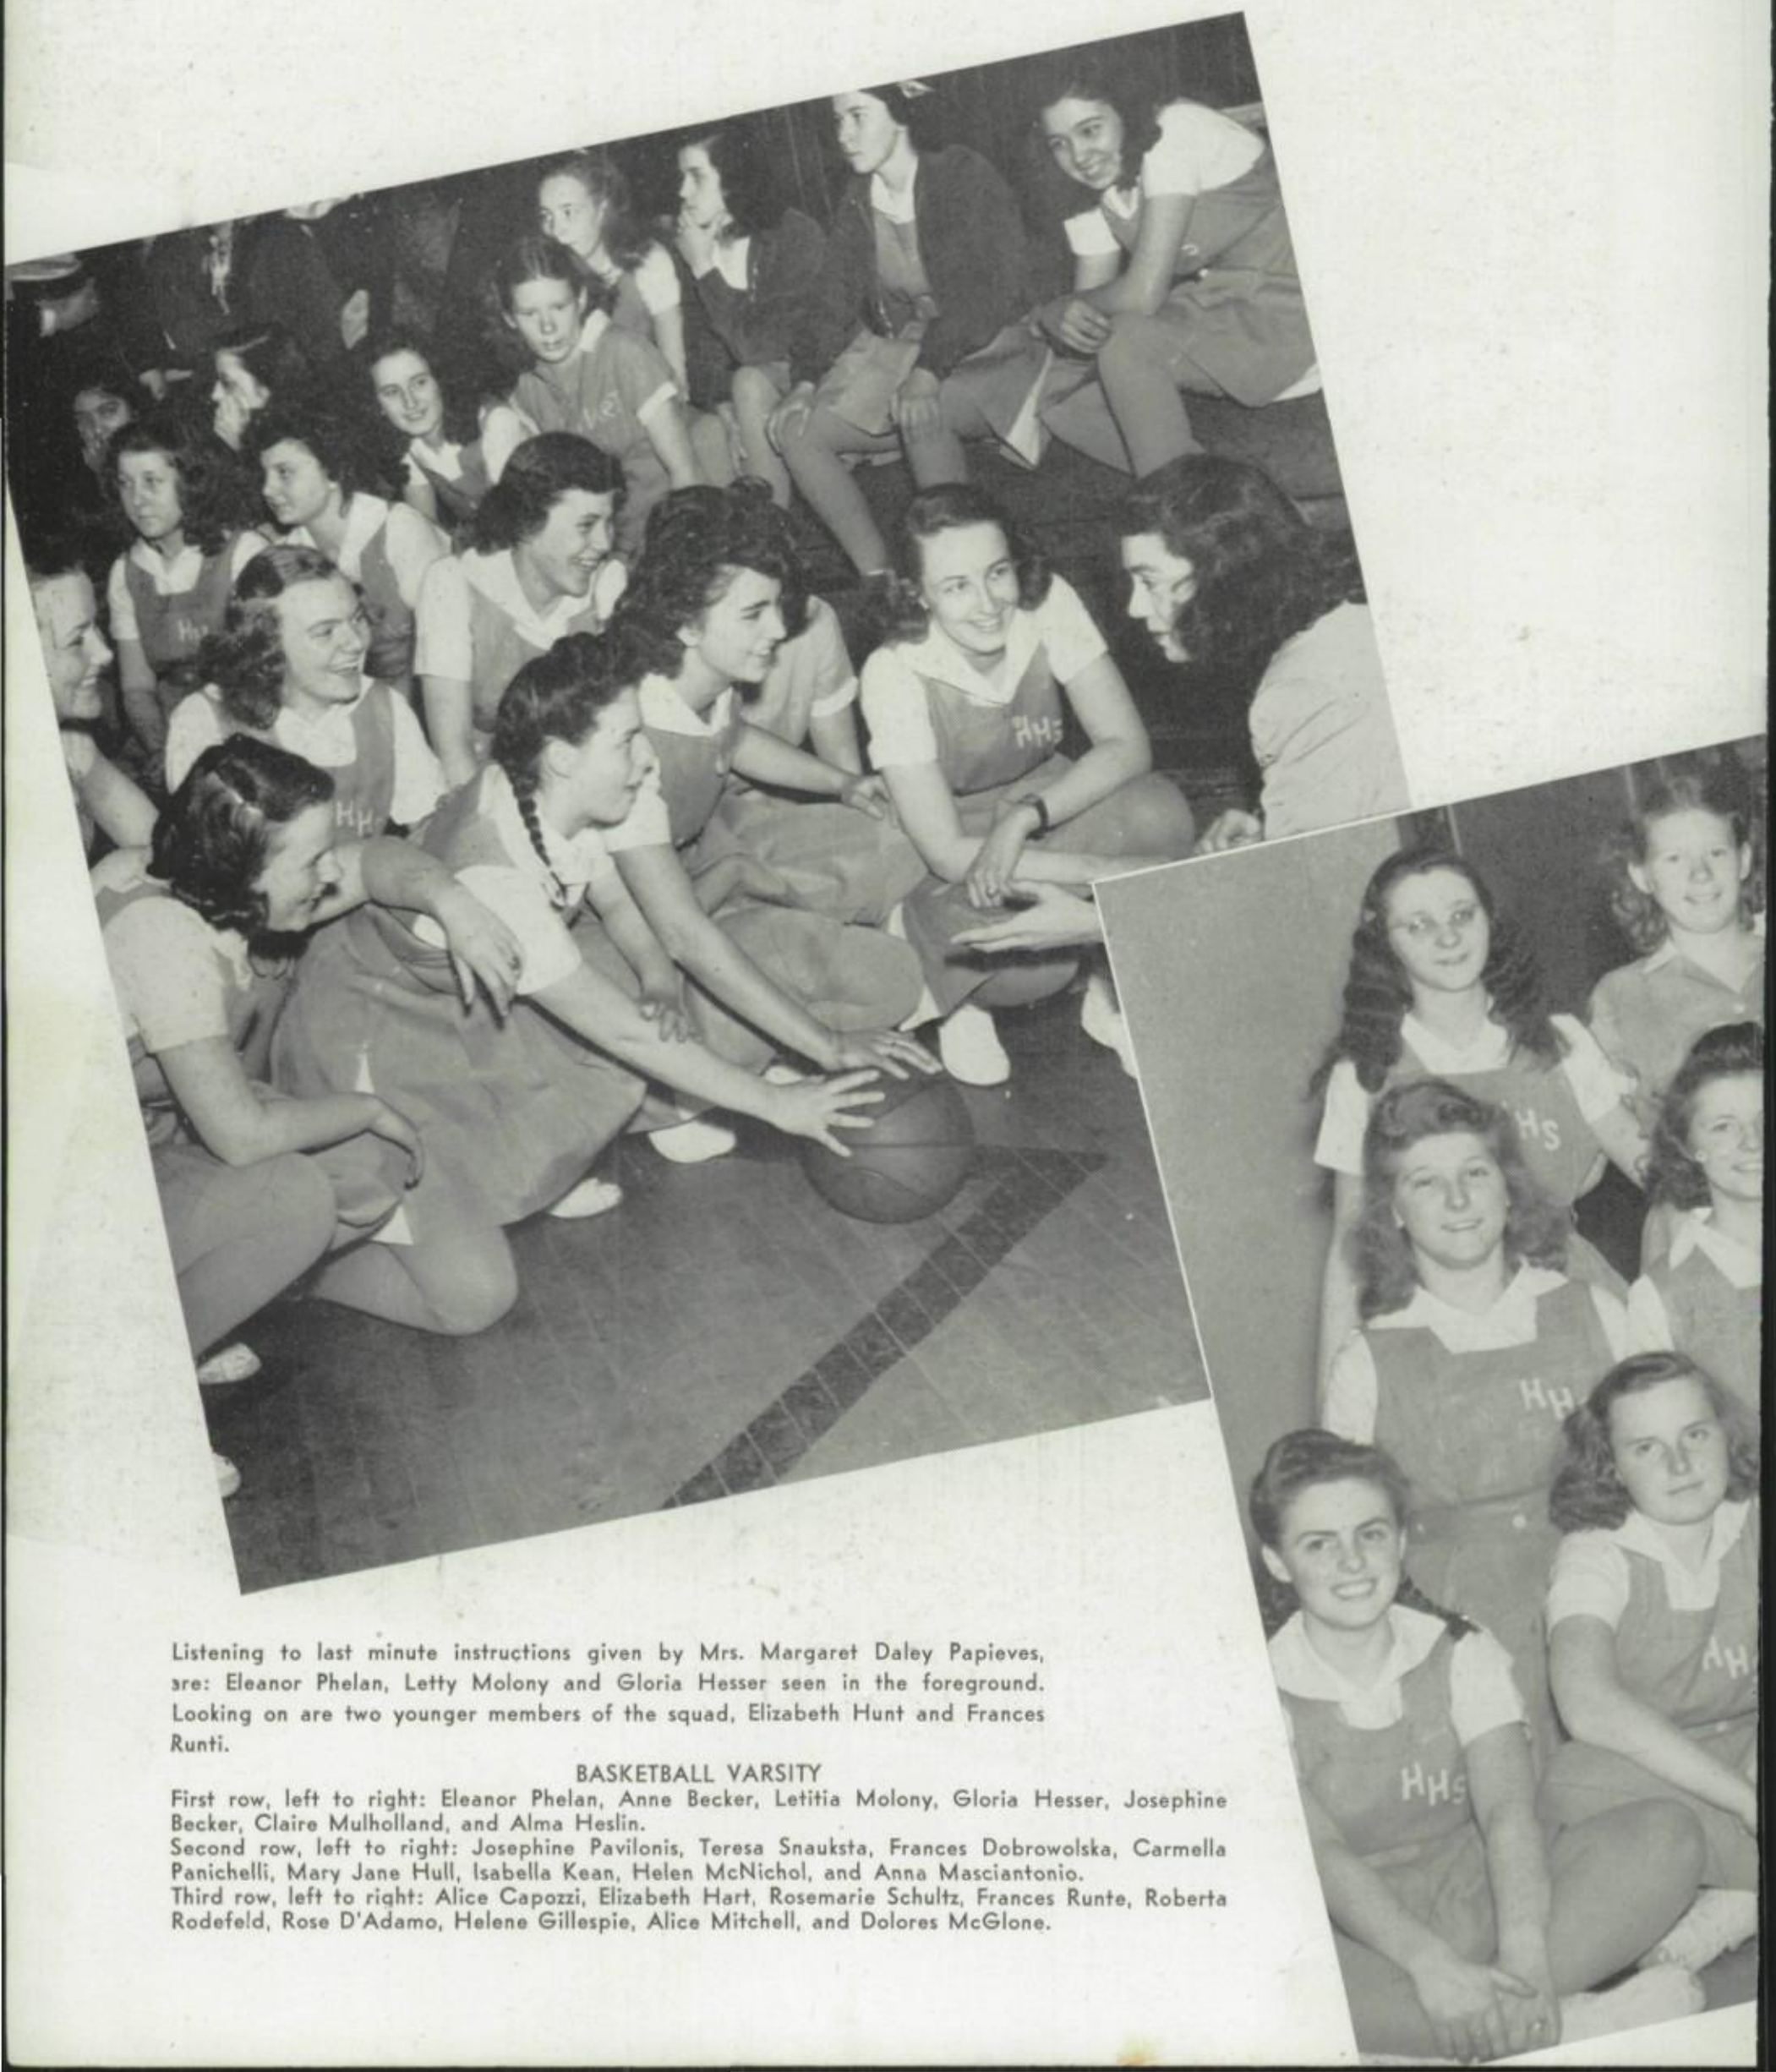
Agnes Stenz, class of '45, is Hallahan's smart and snappy drum majorette. She has been an asset to our band since 1942, when she joined its personnel.

Here are the Blue and Whiters . . .



Listening to last minute instructions given by Mrs. Margaret Daley Papieves, are: Eleanor Phelan, Letty Molony and Gloria Hesser seen in the foreground. Looking on are two younger members of the squad, Elizabeth Hunt and Frances Runti.

BASKETBALL VARSITY

. . Of Spirit Victorious

ZIP-went the ball, and once again the Hallahan basketball team was off for the year of '45. Snappy passes and breath-taking shots kept the blue and whiters on their toes every second of the games. The rafters of Convention Hall shook with the cheers of the Hallahan rooters. The support of the student body, with their spirit of "never say die", spurred the team on to success. Not to be outdone, the band added music and color to these memorable games. Undeniably, the varsity has placed its mark on the history of Hallahan, and added glory to its name, but all this would have been impossible without the patience and guidance of our untiring coach, Mrs. Margaret Daly Papieves. We give you a three-gun salute, VARSITY, Rah Rah Rah! May your great tradition of good sportsmanship live on.

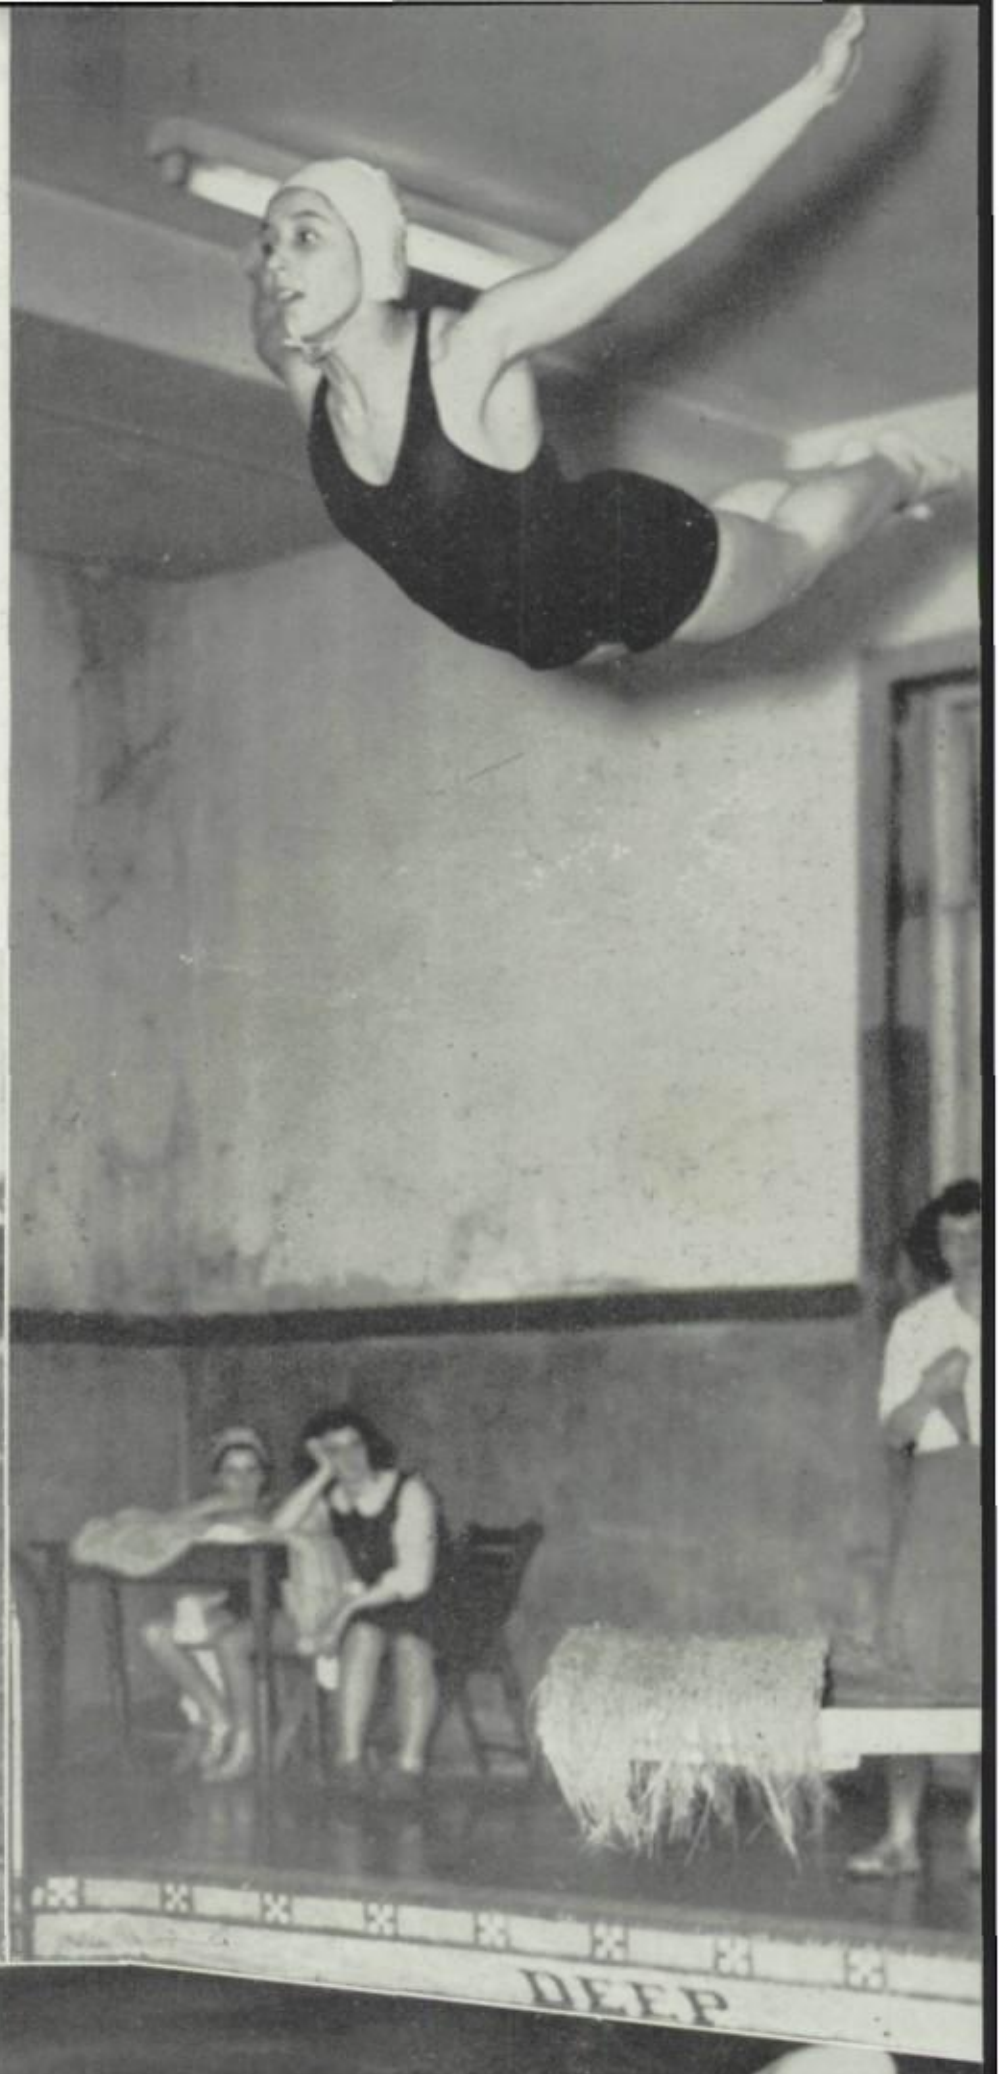
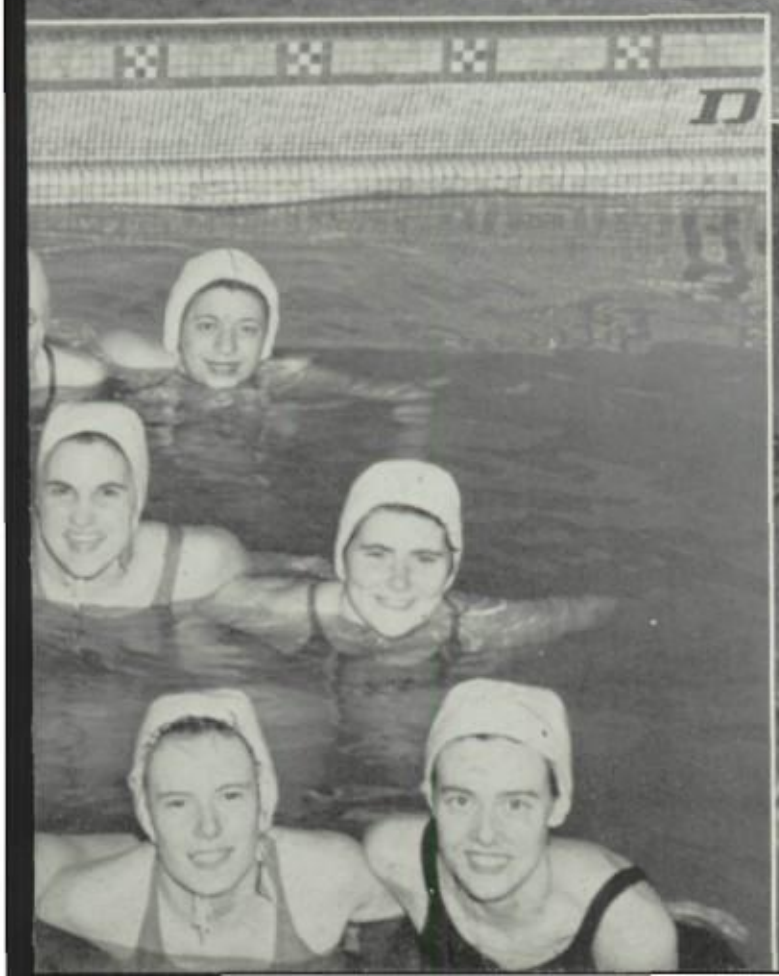
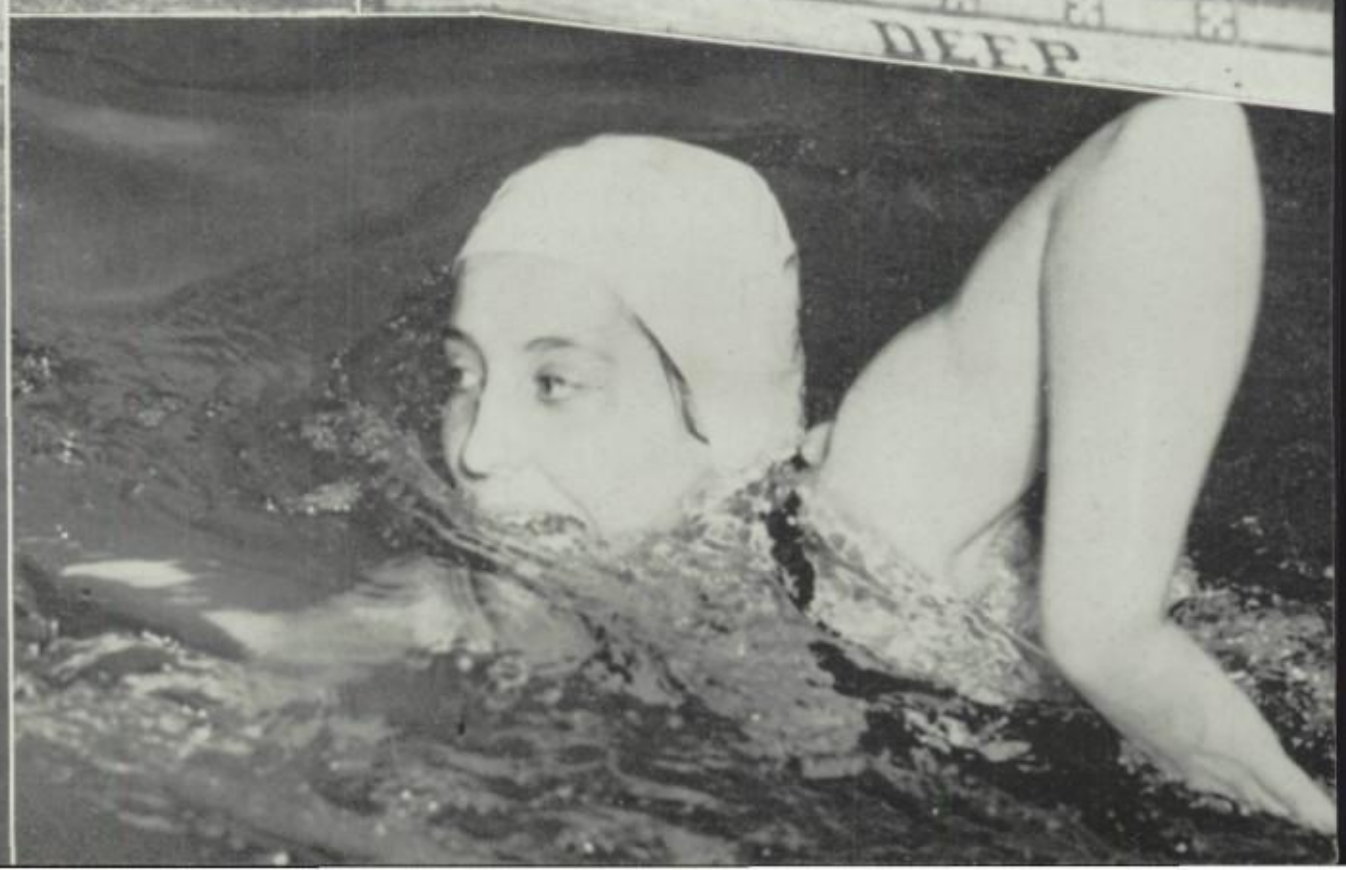
Record Breakers

Besides defeating high school teams in individual school meets, this year's swimming team has captured for our school the 60 yard medley relay high school event at the Germantown Y. M. C. A. to take the three year trophy which was held last year by Abington High. The senior members of the team, Jane Furlong, Rita Wolpert, executing a beautiful swan dive, Barbara Duffy, Frances Ferris, and Helen Jarosiewicz have alternately captained the meets of this highly successful group.

Josephine Becker takes the ball from Little Flower's right halfback as Hallahan advances to score. Josephine is backed by the captain, Vivian Chasero. Helen McNichol and Frances Ferris follow through on the left. The outcome was a 2-0 victory over them.







Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory of

Our Seniors

The class of '45 follows proudly in the footsteps of former senior classes. They keep bright the golden traditions of Hallahan and set the pace for the underclassmen. The seniors have taken outstanding part in all school activities and have represented the school in varied inter-school programs. Their experience in leadership should serve them well when they take their place in the post war world. When they fall in line behind the other alumnae of Alma Mater, may they continue to give glory to Hallahan and show their appreciation by sustained interest and loyalty.

Ship Ahoy!

The S. S. Hallahan set sail on Junior day. Helen Cregan surveys the scenes with interest. Mary Lesher receives a coveted prize from Capt. Marie Codori. Helen Cregan displays finesse in ballet. These four Chinese lassies were met in the Orient. Home again we go with "Our Lady of Hallahan!"

Hats Off to Hallahan!

The annual Freshman Day performance titled "Hats Off to Hallahan" welcomed the freshman class and stimulated their participation in curriculum and in activities. Dolores Allegra, Freshie, (center) regretted growing up because it meant going to high school. Mickey Mouse and members of the Student Council introduced Freshie to Hallahan, its studies, band, glee club, publications, and other activities, changing Freshie's outlook and arousing in the process her enthusiasm for Hallahan High.

Curtain Going Up . . .

This year the Senior Class went straight to Broadway for its dramatic production, Sidney Kingsley's "Patriots", a play which holds special appeal in these stirring times and which should intensify our love of country. Through the expert direction of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney and the performances of a very fine all-girl cast, Kingsley's "Patriots" won acclaim as a powerful and brilliantly interpreted play by the thespians of '45. Pictured are Marie Codori, as Young Thomas Jefferson, with Martha (Mary Tasca), his beloved wife, at Monticello; the aged Thomas Jefferson with Jupiter (Barbara Duffy).

The Stardust Prom was held at the Warwick Hotel on October 31 for the class of 1945. Pictured here are seniors and their escorts entering the Warwick foyer; a glimpse of dancers caught in a moment of intermission; our charming dance committee smiling from the winding stairs; the gracious reception line headed by Monsignor John J. Bonner and Mrs. Vincent A. Carroll; a close-up of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney and Miss Christine Schiavo, Chairman of the Prom Committee, catching a moment's conversation; and dancing partners enjoying the music of Mr. Ken Keeley and his orchestra, whose rendition of the popular "Moonglow" delighted the appreciative audience. We shall always hold the remembrance of the Stardust Prom among our fond memories of the happy years spent at Hallahan. • • • • •

Hallahan "Pin ups"

Meet the Hallahan pin-up girls selected from the Easter parade of 1945. Posed against the background of Philadelphia's famous parkway in an early spring they model outfits designed and executed by the wearers. The accessories were chosen as a contrast to the basic colors which this season were especially exciting and added a gay note to the costumes. Stylish, practical and economic, these fashions for victory show that Hallahanites are in step with the best-dressed Americans throughout our land.

Venite

Remembered long after graduation by former students of Hallahan is the traditional Christmas celebration which is depicted in this series of pictures. The members of the glee club, dressed in white gowns with red stoles, go through the entire school building singing the students' favorite old and beautiful Christmas carols. The students in their classrooms take part by joining in the singing as the carolers pass by the open doors. The lighted candles carried by the members of the glee club are symbolic of the light of Christ in the world.

Adoremus

The glee club members pause on the main floor of the school building in front of the lighted window which is another distinctive feature of the Christmas celebration. The window has been decorated and painted by the students in the Art Department. In the center picture is shown the Christmas tableau depicting the Virgin and Infant surrounded by angels. The tableau was given this year at the meeting of the Alumnae which is held every year in the Alumnae Hall on the last Sunday before Christmas.

The stirring finale which climaxed Hallahan's fourth annual musicale was based on the theme that peace lies in God. An appropriate musical atmosphere was created by the orchestra and glee club which collaborated in the beautiful selection called "The Voice of Freedom." This composition aptly expressed the peace and joy born of a confident hope in God. This creed was further stressed by the formation of a huge cross of lilies which gave forth a brilliant radiance when complete darkness descended upon the auditorium. It truly symbolized what it represented, the peace of God, the Eternal Light of the World, triumphant over earthly darkness.

ACCELERATED GRADUATES

The accelerated course was offered by the Diocesan Summer School for the benefit of those students possessing the necessary qualifications who desired to graduate from high school in minimum time. Out of 285 students enrolled there were forty-seven girls from Hallahan. Some of these students wished to enter college or nursing schools in September; others wished to participate in war work or essential industries upon graduation. The course was conducted at West Catholic Girls' High under the supervision of the priests and sisters from the diocesan high schools. This year accelerated graduates enjoyed their own Baccalaureate Mass and graduation exercises. On the evening of August 25 the first co-educational commencement in the diocese of Philadelphia was held in the auditorium of the West Catholic Girls' High School.

Mathematics seems to be a fascinating subject for Anne Brady. Anne earned glory for Hallahan when she wrote and delivered the salutatory for the Accelerated Graduation.

On the stage representatives from the various boys' and girls' diocesan high schools receive their diplomas from Monsignor Bonner and Dr. Gorham who officiated at the commencement.

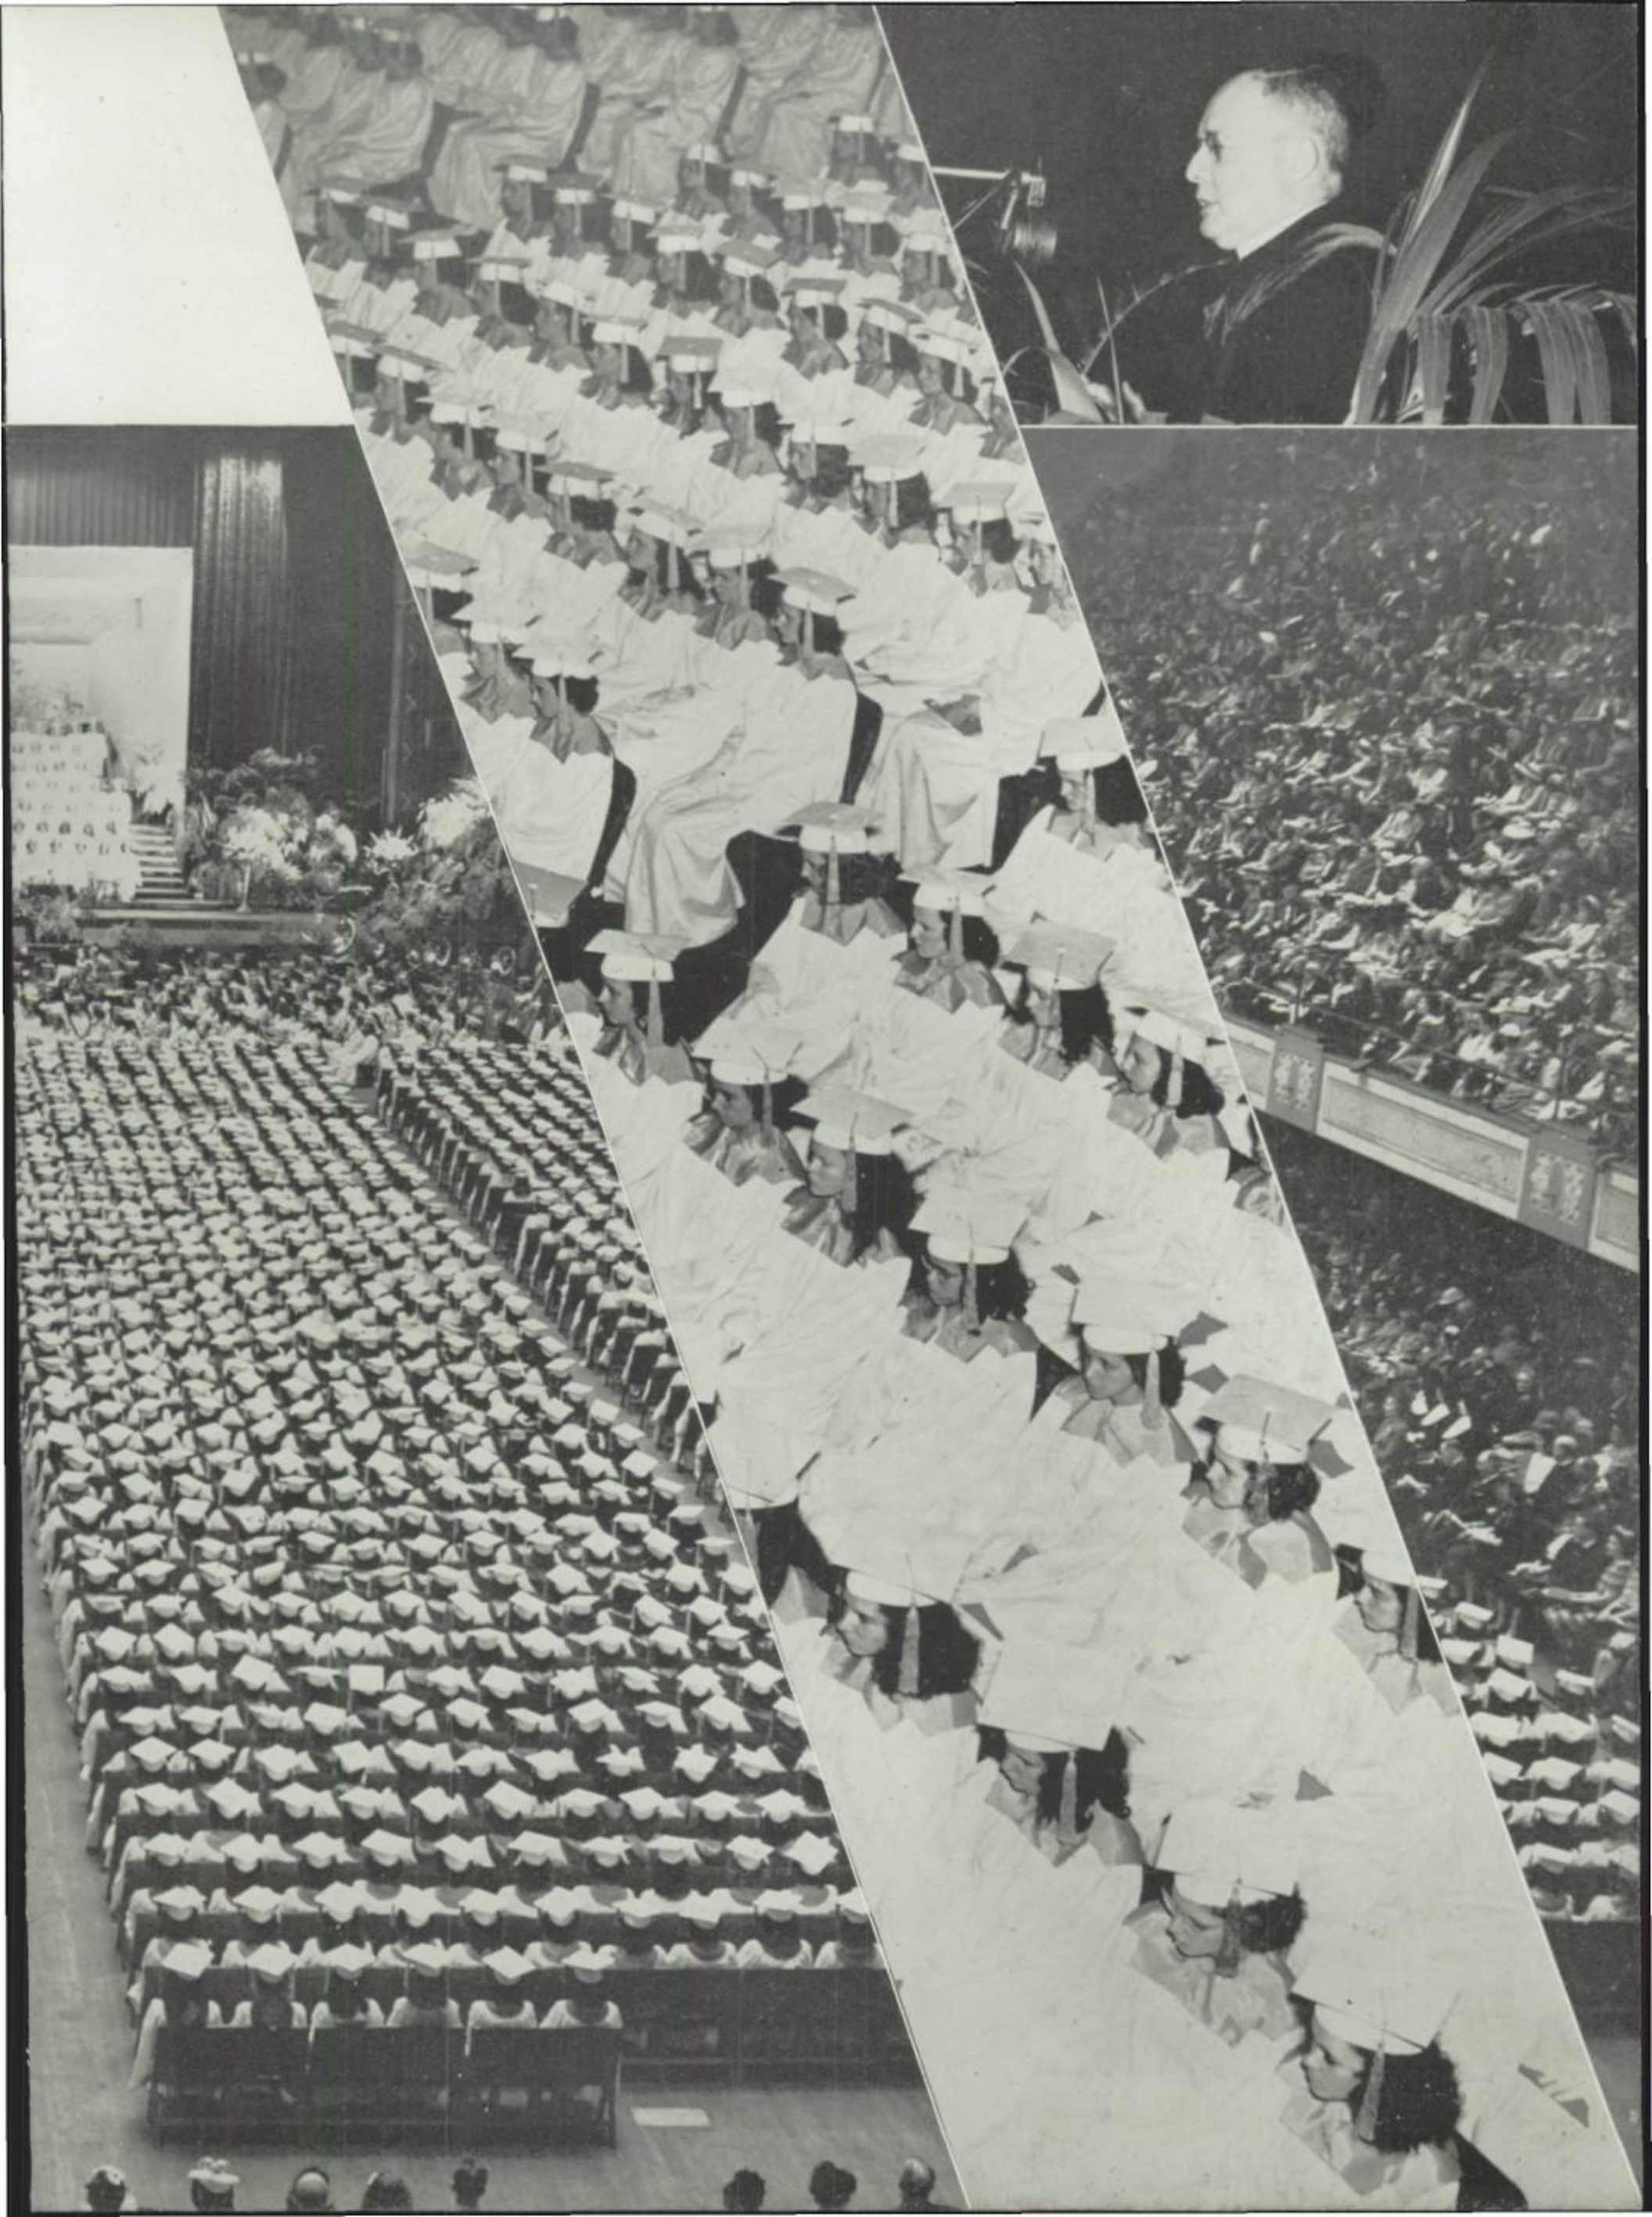
A glimpse of the students who graduated from the diocesan summer school on Friday evening, August 25th. These earnest students completed an intensive ten-week accelerated course.

Each year the seniors look forward to the Baccalaureate Mass. With the familiar dome, a towering symbol of our faith, majestically outlined against the sky, the girls march across the Parkway into the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul. They bear before them the flags of school and country. They wear their caps and gowns and are assembled to attend Mass together as a class for the last time. From the choir loft in the Cathedral, rows and rows of white caps in orderly array present a striking picture. Having entered the church the girls genuflect upon the dipping of the school flag. Baccalaureate Mass follows.

Bless Us Ere We Go . . .

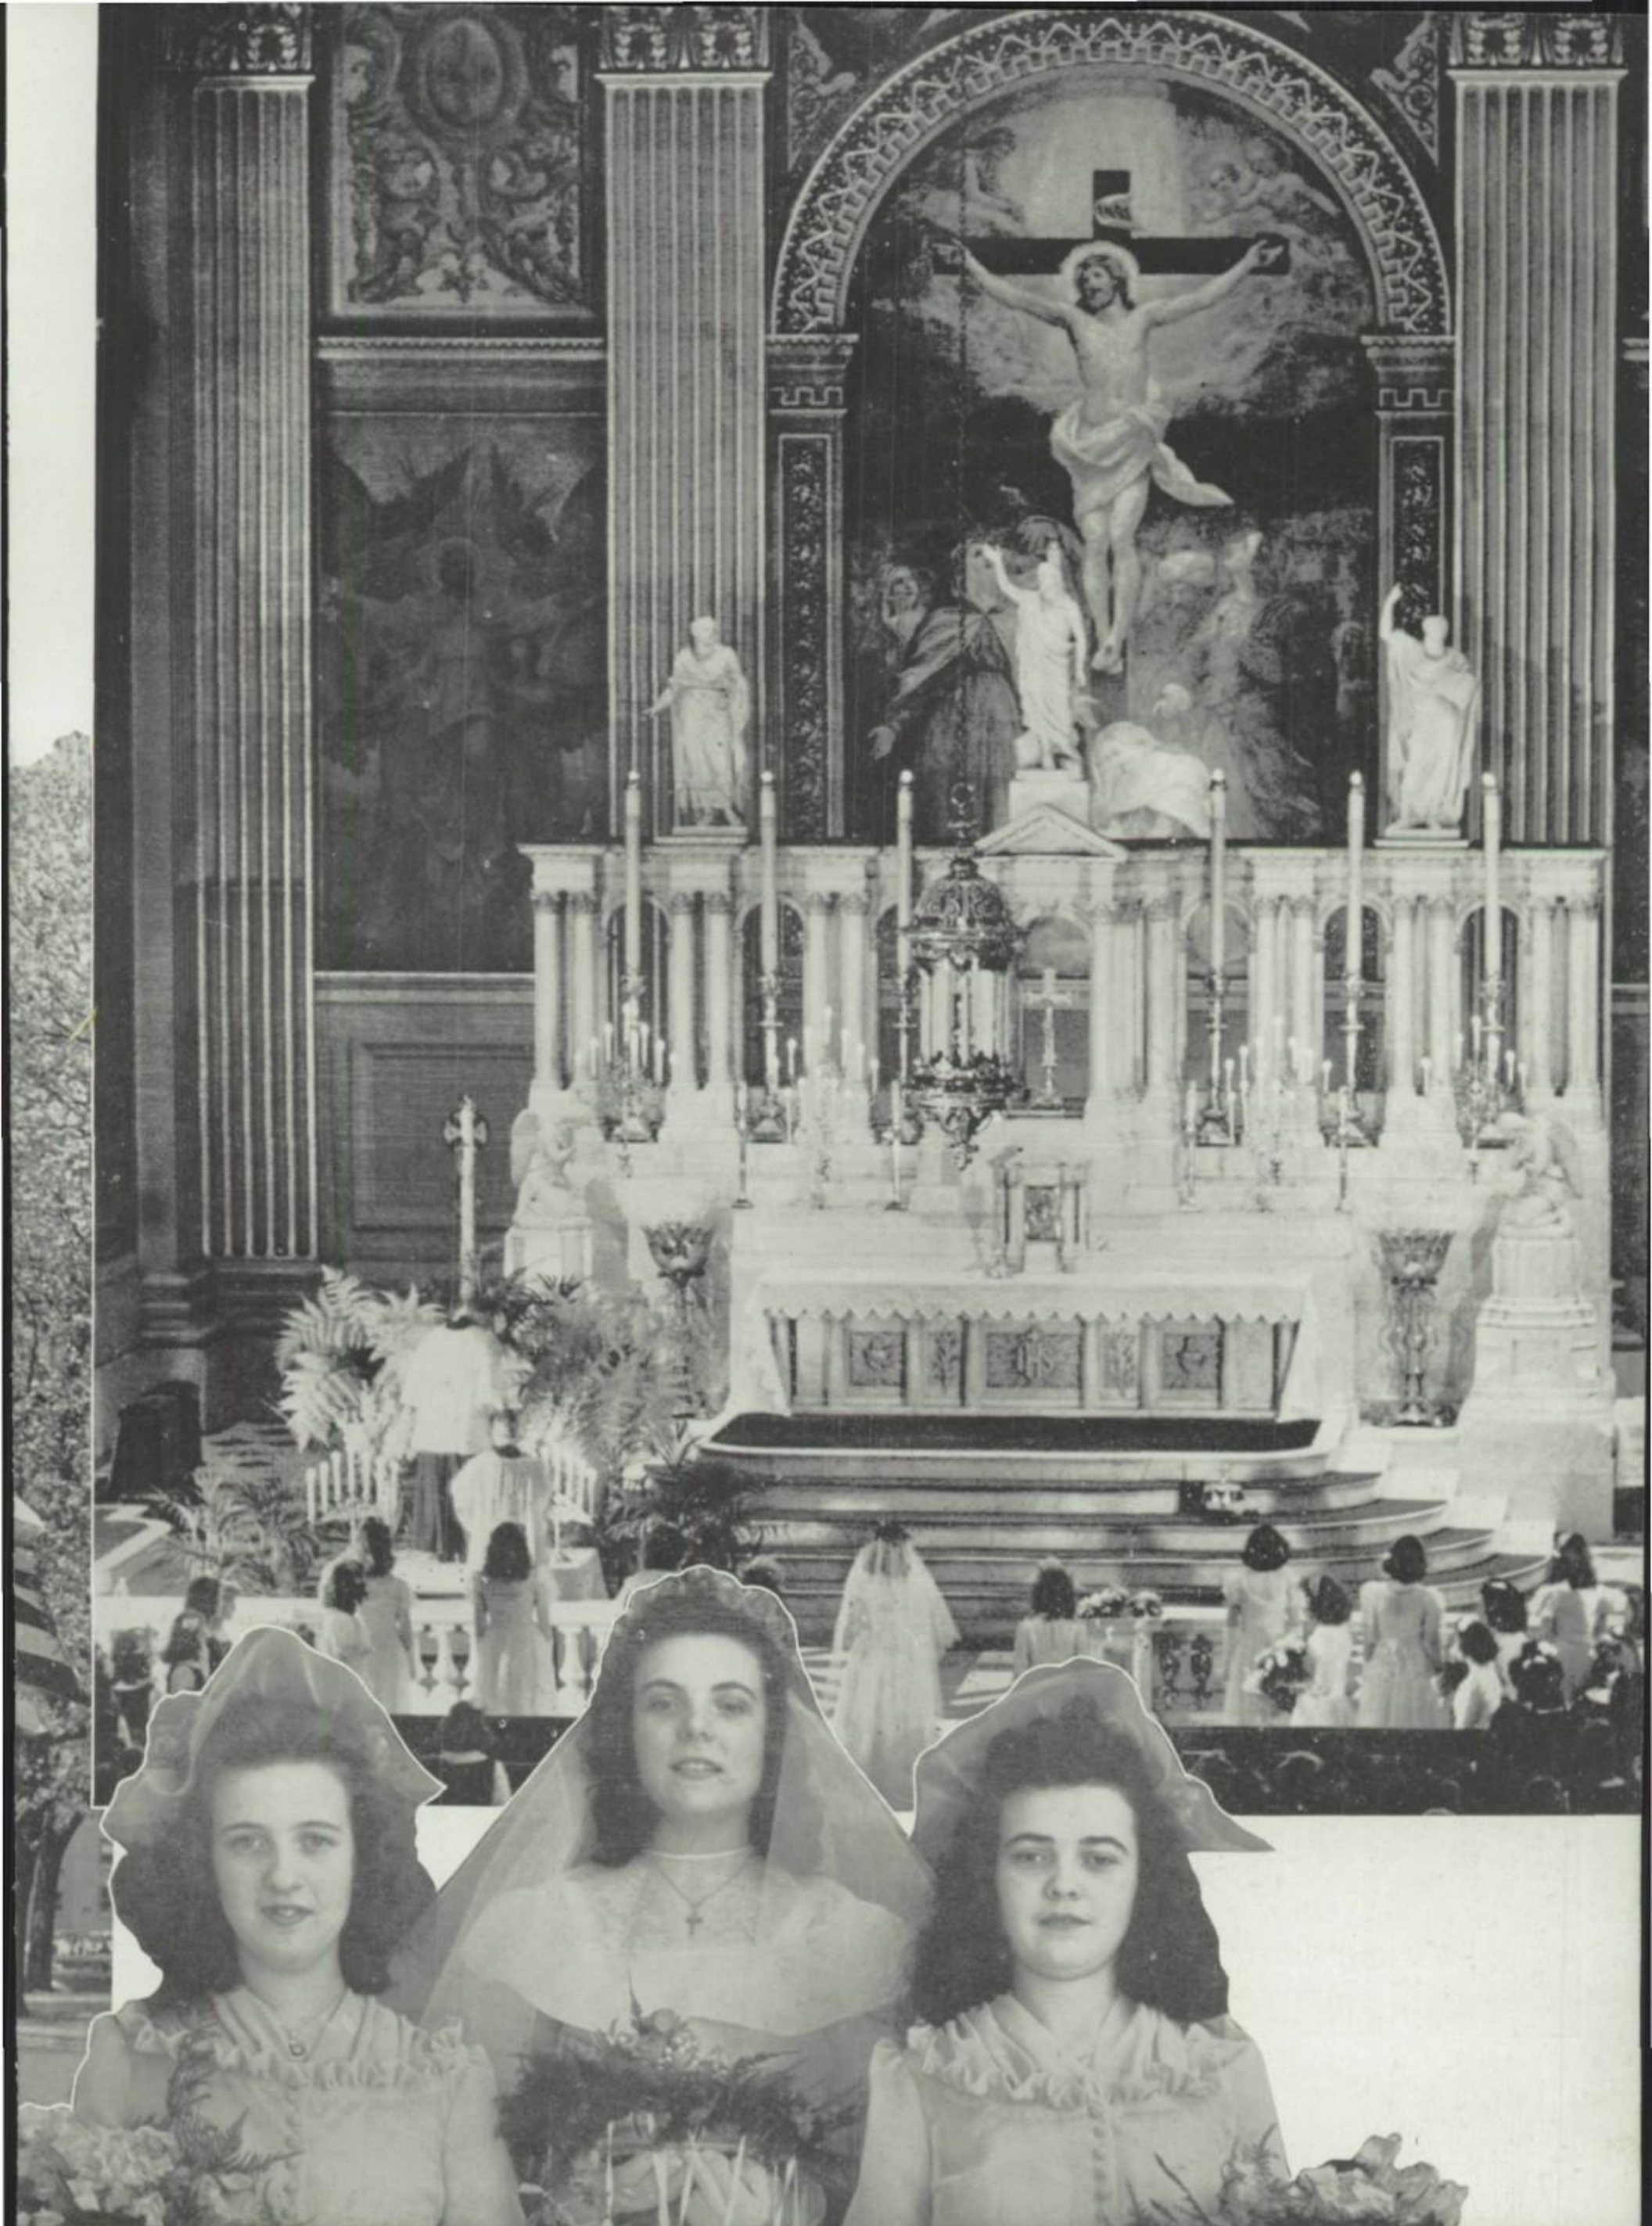
The Reverend Joseph A. Gorham is here pictured distributing Holy Communion to the graduates. Those mothers who are alumnae of Hallahan are invited to attend Mass and to receive Holy Communion with their graduating daughters, and are pictured here in a smiling group. The wistful joy and beauty of this day will always be a cherished memory.

With Cap and Gown



We Crown Thee Today

Having been dedicated to our Lady, the entire student body of Hallahan participates in the traditional May Procession. Hallahan is the only one of the Catholic girls' high schools to have its annual May Procession terminate in the beautiful Cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul. The special guard of honor of blue ribbon girls that precedes the May Queen carries the banner of Saint Joseph. Pictured here are the May Queen with her maids of honor on the school steps. The procession winds its way along the Parkway until it reaches the Cathedral where the coronation of Our Lady by the May Queen takes place before the magnificent altar.



Lest Old Acquaintance Be Forgot

This year the Annual Alumnae Mass and Communion Breakfast was followed by a reception at the Bellevue-Stratford. This event afforded graduates an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and fill their hearts with the glory of a great school. Shown at the microphone is Monsignor Bonner, delivering his message which is always a highlight of the occasion. Standing on the marble stairs in the Bellevue-Stratford and collecting for the "Trickle of Nickels" are the girls from the Holy Redeemer. Seated at the harp is Miss Nancy McDonald, a former graduate, and at present a member of the music faculty. Selma Guerra, a renowned girl saxophonist, also a faculty member, added color to the delightful program. The sweet tones of Antoinette Martinetti echoed among their golden memories. • • •
